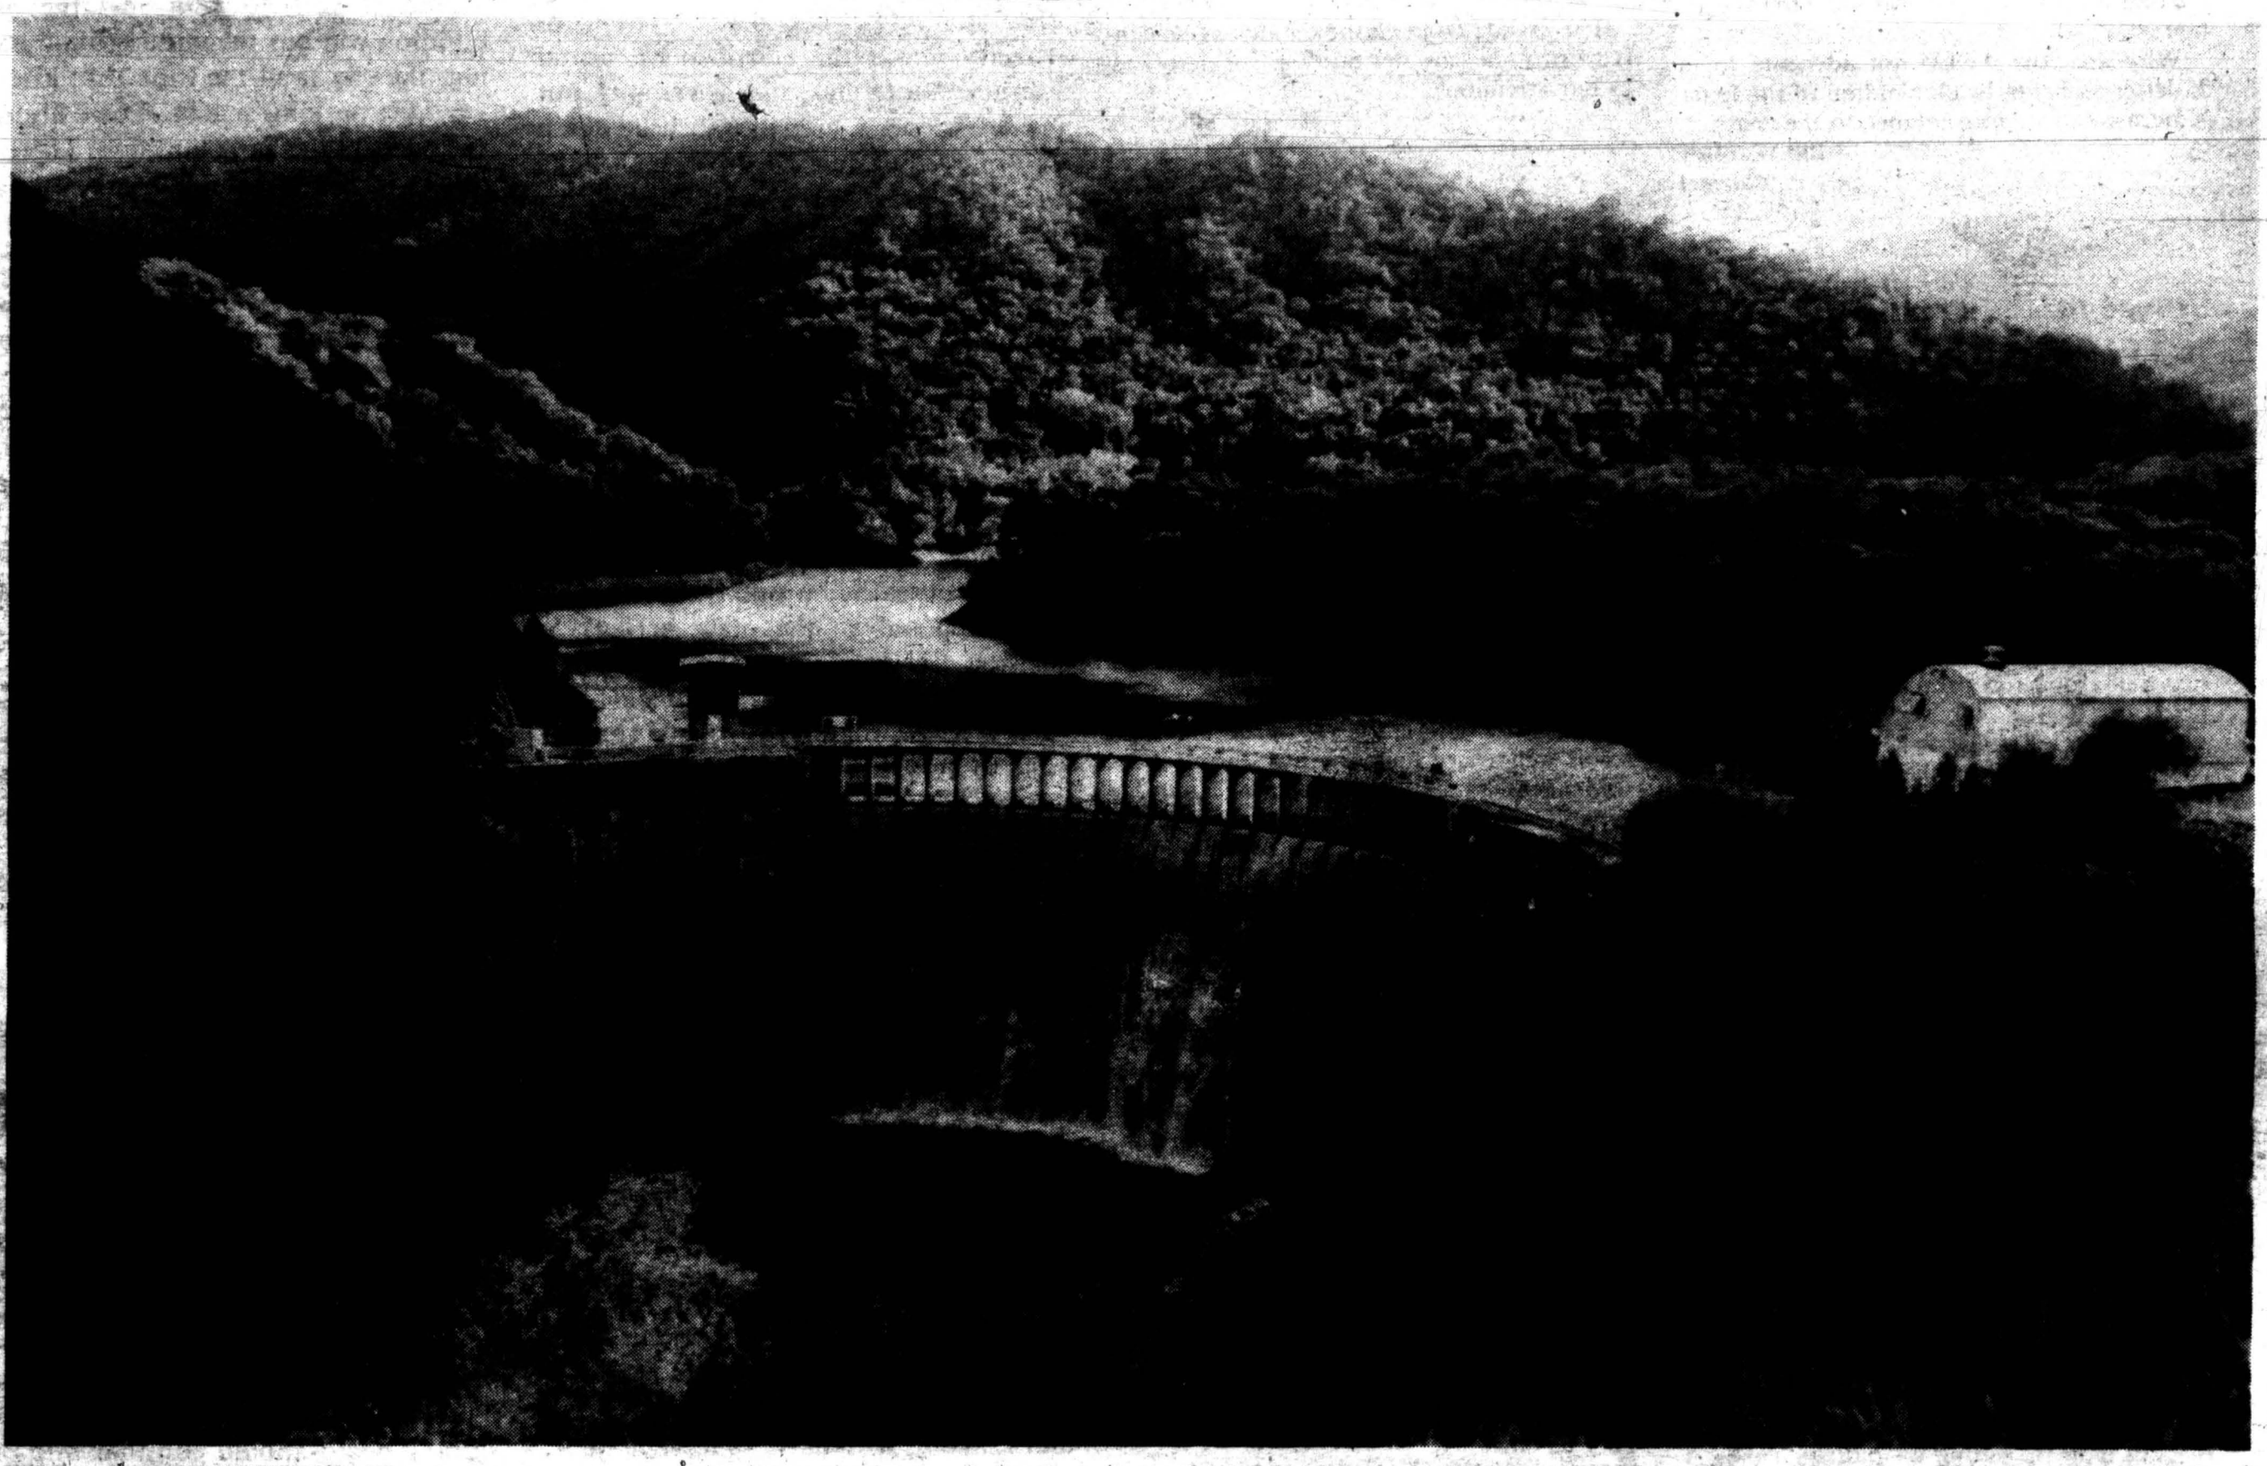
BULK RATE U.S. POSTAGE PAID CARMEL, CA Permit No. 149

OUR 73ND YEAR, NO. 2 January 15, 1987



THE ENVIRONMENTAL impact report/environmental impact statement (EIR/EIS) on the proposed San Clemente Dam moved a step closer to completion Jan. 12 when the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board approved approximately $108,300 in studies to complete the necessary reports. Chairman Dick Heuer said he expects these to be the final studies conducted for the proposed dam. The water board has plans for an "advisory" vote on the $46 million project in November of this year. The proposed dam, which will inundate the older San Clemente Dam (pictured above), will augment the current peninsula water supply. (Photo courtesy of California-American Water Co.)

Water board OKs final studies on new dam

By NANCY HILLS

ALLOCATION, AUGMENTATION and adjustments headed the list of items for the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board meeting Jan. 12.

The board voted to begin an environmental impact report process on the district's water allocation system and adjust the allocation to reflect errors found in a water meter audit.

The city of Carmel supported the EIR which it requested in a lawsuit filed last year against the allocation system, but opposed the adjustment, calling it "premature" and asked the board to wait until after the allocation EIR was completed.

In another agenda item, the board authorized $108,300 for studies tentatively described by Chairman Dick Heuer as the last research needed to complete the EIR/EIS on the proposed San Clemente Dam to augment the water supply. An "advisory" vote is scheduled on the project in November 1987.

The vote on the allocation EIR, water district general manager Bruce Buel explained to the board, would start state-mandated consultations with agencies affected by the allocation process. That primarily involves Monterey County and the six cities within the district. After the board consults with the agencies, a public hearing will be held Feb 9.

During the consultations, the agencies will have an opportunity for input into the scope and definition of the EIR, defining its parameters and areas of investigation.

The board, at this time, defines the project as "the allocation system as a regulatory means of distributing a limited water supply."

The investigation, to be conducted by Buel, will include looking at the total size of the supply, the rationale behind its division and how to insure compliance, Heuer said.

Also to be investigated will be, Buel said, the impact of no allocation system and alternatives to the current 18,600 acre feet cap on water consumption.

"It is a comprehensive study," he added.

The annual water allocation divides the total water supply between the jurisdictions within the district for their present and future use. Carmel exceeded its allocation during the past water year — July 1, 1984 to June 31, 1985 — and has imposed a moratorium on new water connections or activities that increase water consumption in the city.

Carmel has requested 100 acre feet be added to its allocation and filed a lawsuit stating the system involves the district in illegal land use planning and violates the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA).

The city claims that an EIR should have been done on growth impacts when the allocation was set in 1980 and 1981. Buel explained that a "categorical exemption" was filed at the time the allocation was done.

Staff planner Brian Roseth told the board at the meeting that the city "lends it support for preparing an EIR and has thought it was needed for sometime."

However, Roseth added that Carmel "urged the (water district) staff to seek outside help with the EIR." District staff was needed to work on completion of the proposed dam. The "whole community needs to be able to look at the document in a neutral manner," he said.

Heuer responded by telling Roseth that much of the information used in the EIR was gathered by outside agencies for the report on the dam.

It was, Roseth said, not so much the credibility of the data, but the underlying assumptions and judgments "coming out of that data" that concerns Carmel.

Alan Williams, a Carmel developer also representing the city, told the board he felt that they should "seriously consider project size" and this is an opportunity to "review the total amount of water needed in the community."

"Those comments are better addressed on the dam," Heuer responded. "The allocation is not based on demand but on supply."

The EIR would not address increasing the supply as much as address how to divide or manage the existing water available.

•

THE CITY of Carmel had more to say about the readjustment of allocation to correct errors found when California-American Water Co. conducted an audit.

Cal-Am used new boundary maps to check the meter locations in a special computer program it uses to determine water consumption in each jurisdiction. The water use is used to determine the jurisdictions' compliance with its allocation.

The largest error was found between the city of Monterey and Monterey County. The city received approximately 400 acre feet additional water to its allocation.

The adjustment would not change the impact of the allocation or amount of water

Shortened alphabet

Dear Editor:

By noting the recent history of the American Civil Liberties Union it seems to me that it is past the time for them to take action.

Why does the ACLU not advocate for a 25-letter alphabet by elimination of the letter X because of its resemblance to the cross.

Jewel in the crown

Dear Editor:

Townhomes my a--. On my beloved Mission Ranch. I still love the place and stay there when I can. But my real sentimental attachment comes from my first visit to Carmel and Mission Ranch during WWII when I was a chic, young working girl in San Francisco. I was so enchanted and thought the whole place had been dreamed up just for me.

And Mission Ranch was the jewel in the crown. I was knocked out by the sophistication and exquisitely rural setting of the whole place.

Stayed in a cottage at Mission Ranch last New Year's Day. In the morning had my morning coffee on the porch and watched the cows come up the fence. How can you duplicate that with townhomes.

Oh, thank you Clint Eastwood. Will even go see your latest movie if that will help recompense you.

Unsung artists?

Dear Editor:

How fortunate we are who live on this nature-favored coast. How fortunate that some of an artistic bent come (or live) here and do their best to improve on nature for our and their enjoyment.

You will recognize their artistic creations:

The Minimalists. They carefully divide a styrofoam cup into a dozen pieces before placing it in its setting on path or road. A bottle is not just set down, but is displayed in a thousand glittering pieces. Cans are twisted, or smashed flat, into interesting shapes.

The Serialists. Their creations are distributed from the moving car or van. First the paper bag. Then the wrappings. The plastic utensils. The napkins. These works are not unidirectional, but can be enjoyed when viewed either way.

The Pointilists. The challenge in this category is to pitch the object to the exact spot where it will longest remain on view. Winner so far, pending final judging, must be the beer can in an almost-perpendicular bed of ice plant near the hairpin curve on Scenic. It has been on view almost a month. Congratulations are due.

The Constructionists. The best work here is being done at the weathered rocks at the hairpin turn that look like the setting for a Druid religious ceremony. A recent group effort was an arrangement of plastic barrel, cardboard carton, twelve styrofoam cups and three beer cans. Striking! With that gone, a smaller arrangement coalesced a green plastic container (Seven-Up), two beige cans (Coors) and—what imagination—a roll of white toilet paper.

The Graffitoists. Some months ago, London's social-conscious City Council (since discontinued?) invited a few of New York City's most-dedicated subway-car adorners to put on a demonstration of their art. Carmel need issue no such invitation. The talented "Park Angel" has already improved the service building at the state beach. All sides! And the imaginative "Party Boyz x 4, Bobby, Tony, Andre, Mando, de Salas," have calligraphically decorated a white residence door near the lagoon. Selflessly staying up past midnight to do it.

The annual Sand Castle Contest is certainly worthy. But are not other artists deserving of our attention?

Teach your children

Dear Editor:

Education Secretary, William Bennett, seems well aware that American high school students are taught next to nothing about the evils of communism, and its conspiratorial, subversive treachery.

According to an Associated Press release, Dec. 6, Bennett warned that we are not teaching young Americans the meaning of the Berlin Wall, the meaning of "the dictatorship of the proletariat," the meaning of the totalitarian state, nor the cruelty of planned famine, purges, show trials or the "gulag."

It is not that Americans don't spend enough money on education. No nation spends more on education than Americans.

One day, future historians will undoubtedly marvel that the great industrial power that could spend millions to teach sex education, modern dance, basket-weaving or ceramics, either could not or would not teach its young people to recognize, to identify, or to protect themselves from an enemy that has sworn to bury us all.

The American Indians or the American pioneers did a far better job with no educational budget at all.

A sore thumb

Dear Editor:

In regard to Paul Laub's response to the lawsuit filed against him in which he characterizes himself as the "highest profile businessman in Carmel," (Carmel Pine Cone Dec. 4), we all might agree if it means that "he sticks out like a sore thumb."

Library Annex: Part XXV?

JUST WHEN you thought it was safe to start talking about the new library annex: Annex II.

If this were a movie (and sometimes it feels like we're all in one) it would be called that, or worse, like The Monster That Wouldn't Go Away. The controversy about the Harrison Memorial Library Annex has, like a vampire out for new blood, reared its ugly head again only months after the proverbial stake was pounded into its heart. Clearly this issue will not die.

The city council in August approved a $900,000 library annex at the corner of Lincoln and Sixth, catty-corner to the library. With that came a 90-space $1.5 million underground parking garage. This momentous decision came after more than 25 years of discussions, debates, polls, studies, reports, public acrimony and private hand-wringing. Everyone breathed a sigh of relief, even those opposed to the plan, at least a decision was made and the city would stick to it, come hell or high water.

Now a new plan has surfaced that — even to cynical minds like mine — appeared on its face to be sound, logical and deceptively simple.

Former City Councilman Tom May has proposed that the former Crocker Bank building at Sixth and Mission — now vacant — be converted into a library annex.

It made perfect sense. The building was already there, there was ample parking, it's a handsome building that could be easily converted, it's only three blocks from the main library, it even has handicapped access, and it's across the street from Devendorf Park.

May's primary "upside" of using the Crocker building is that it would maintain open space in the city. He proposes that the underground garage at Sixth and Lincoln, with its 90 spaces, be built, but that the ground above it be left as is: "open space."

There's only one problem — and it's a big one: The cost of acquiring the Crocker Bank is a hefty $2.25 million. Add that to a $1.5 million underground garage and the cost of renovating the bank building and you're looking at close to $4 million...all for a little bit of "open space."

And if you go with just the bank building without the underground parking, the city (and the Pine Inn) loses 90 valuable parking spaces. There are only 19 spaces at the bank building. There are others in the surrounding areas, but of course most of those are continually occupied.

There are other drawbacks: the bank building is three blocks from the main library compared to one-half block (or less) for the annex, which is a concern not only for parents and their children, but to library staff. It's been said that a block or two isn't that big of a deal, but it is if you consider crowds of tourists, inclement weather and library users who aren't quite as mobile as you or I.

It's also been insinuated that it's been the library staff that has been pushing for a new annex, for newer, plusher quarters. And why not, they're all crammed into ineffective, unworkable spaces. If you doubt it, go look for yourself. Somehow the staff always seems to get lost in the dust of discussion when it comes to the annex.

An ad hoc council committee of Bob Fischer and Bob Evans, with the help of city staff, is looking into the feasibility of May's proposal, which they should. All options should be considered, even this one, or the city could regret its decision later. Let's look at the true costs and compare them to the costs of the Lincoln Street annex, let's weigh all the alternatives.

The ad hoc committee will report its findings to the library board at its 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 27 meeting. We feel the library board should consider this proposal seriously, but we also believe that the council's decision on the annex will hold up. But will the issue really be dead once and for all? Only time will tell.

Council OKs first Hatton freeway alternative

By DAVID LELAND

CARMEL HAS submitted its response and comments to Caltrans regarding the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway. Now, the waiting begins to see which option will be chosen for the long-awaited, controversial project.

In a letter dated Jan. 7, Doug Schmitz, city administrator, outlined the city's desires for "Alternative No.1," but also expressed concern over several aspects of the $22.9 million plan.

The plan chosen by the Carmel City Council, after consulting Wilbur Smith and Associates, recommends placing Highway 1 on a new alignment, east of the existing highway.

This plan would extend the existing four-lane freeway from the Holman Highway/Highway 1 interchange, south through Hatton Canyon to Carmel Valley Road.

Moreover, the Carmel River Bridge would be widened, interchanges would be constructed at Carpenter Street and Carmel Valley Road, and a separate crossing would be constructed at Rio Road.

For the southern portion of the proposed freeway, the city recommends continuing the alignment south of the Carmel River and transition to the existing highway south of Carmel River.

With Jan. 11 being the closing date for comments on the environmental impact statement, Caltrans officials are now ready to begin addressing all of the considerable input received.

After all of the data is analyzed, a "preferred alternative" will be chosen and forwarded to the state, according to Jerry Laumer, Caltrans deputy district director for planning and programs. After the state makes its recommendations the draft will be sent to the federal government for approval.

This will happen "over the next six months or so," Laumer said.

After the final EIS is completed the public will have 30 days to comment on it, Laumer said. But he added by this time a decision will have been made on the project and most comments will be moot.

ONE OF the concerns expressed by the city in its letter to Caltrans regarding the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway project was that of environmental impact on the canyon. As the proposed freeway snakes its way through the 26-acre canyon, many Monterey Pine trees will be displaced.

•

THE COUNCIL did, however, express concerns regarding several areas of the proposed construction, which were addressed by Schmitz in his Jan. 7 letter. These included:

• The design of the Carpenter Street/Highway 1 interchange. Primarily, the city is concerned that a 50- to 60-foot structure at the interchange would not be in scale with the environment.

In addition, Schmitz wrote, the interchange may not be of sufficient length to accommodate vehicles wishing to enter Carmel.

"Two of the three entrances to the city will now be facilitated from this exit point and further analysis of the length of the offramp should be considered," Schmitz wrote.

The city has requested a three-dimensional model or photo montage so the public can get a better image of the project.

• The city wishes to know if data included in the Carmel Valley Master Plan, released last month, will be included in the final EIS.

• The council, Schmitz wrote, is concerned over the "massive amounts" of cut and fill that will be needed in Hatton Canyon if Alternative No. 1 proceeds.

Indeed, in the EIS the alternative was shown as having one of the worst impacts on the environment of the seven options offered.

This includes about 26 acres of Monterey Pine trees being displaced.

"While the council endorses alternate one through Hatton Canyon," Schmitz wrote, "alternate designs should be considered which will reduce the cut and fill demands and would retain some of the natural vegetation along the walls of the canyon."

• The city has also requested data on the impacts of construction during the construction period and what measures will be taken by Caltrans to deal with them.

Housing project to get 36-space underground garage

By DAVID LELAND

IF ALL goes as planned, the same architect who has been designing plans for the proposed Senior Citizens Housing Project will soon begin preliminary drawings on a 36-space underground parking garage, which the project will be built on.

Monterey-based architect, Bob Jacoubowsky, met Wednesday, Jan. 14, to discuss his potential involvement in the project with Doug Schmitz, city administrator.

At the meeting Schmitz requested Jacoubowsky to submit a bid for drawings by next week, which could in turn appear on the Carmel City Council's Feb. 3 agenda for further action.

The parking garage could cost between $350,000 and $500,000, according to Schmitz.

"The city and the Carmel Foundation both desire one architect doing both projects and to coordinate them," Jacoubowsky said.

Planning Director Diane White said planning commission involvement in the process would probably take about three or four months.

With this in mind, Jacoubowsky said groundbreaking may not be too far off.

"It's very reasonable to assume we could begin construction sometime in the summer," he said.

Meanwhile, Jacoubowsky said his firm — Davis Jacoubowsky Hawkins Walker Associates of Monterey — will begin moving ahead with a "building design" for senior housing now that the parking garage issue is becoming resolved.

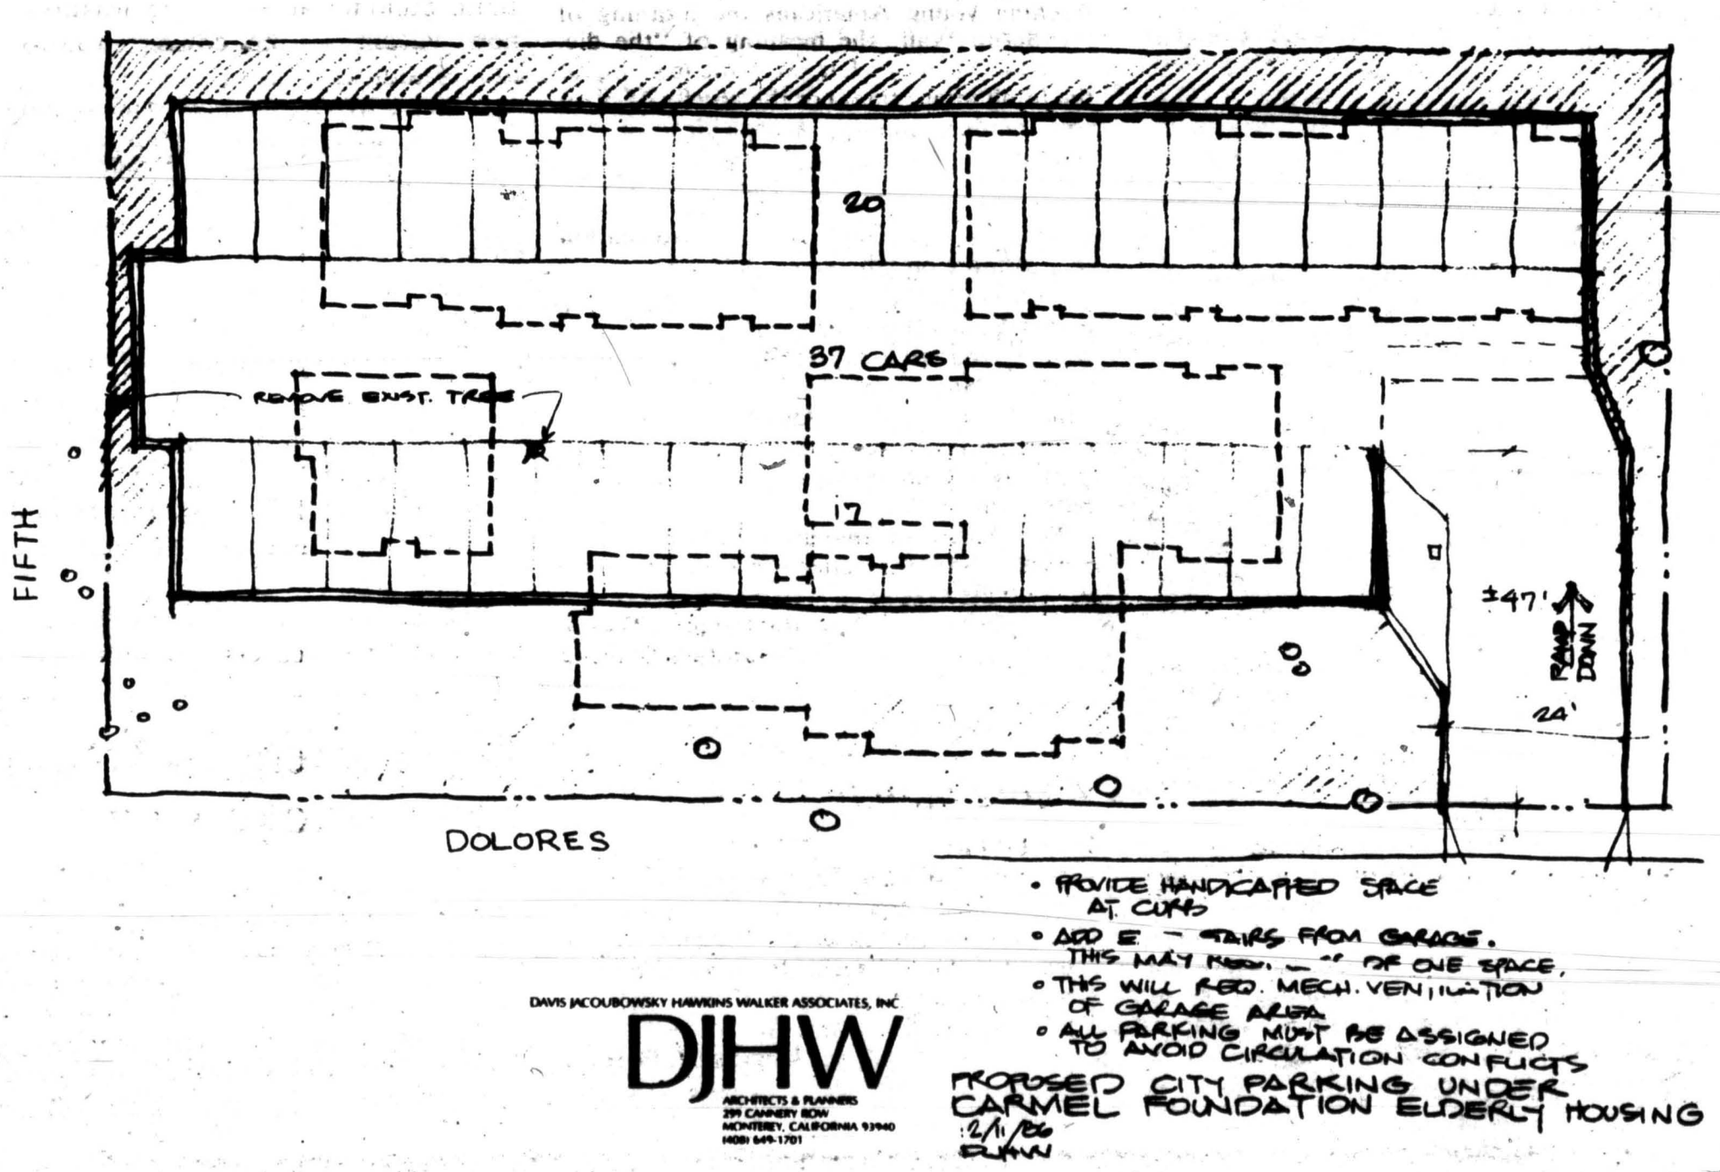
"We know essentially what area the parking garage will occupy and what affect it will have," he said.

The only other potential problem that may arise with the parking garage, Jacoubowsky said, would be an amendment to the coastal plan.

But he said this should really not be an issue, because all that needs to be done is to change the density numbers. The coastal permit has already been granted.

•

AT ITS Jan. 6 meeting the council moved (4-1, with Councilman Jim Wright dissenting) to proceed with the concept of an underground parking garage in conjunction with the proposed senior citizen project.



ARCHITECT BOB Jacoubowsky designed this schematic design for the underground parking garage, which will support the Senior Citizens Housing Project. Located at Fifth Avenue and Dolores Street, the 36-space garage will cost between $350,000 and $500,000.

The proposed project is located near the post office, at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Dolores Street, now a dirt parking lot owned by the city.

The senior housing project had been designed to accomodate only nine cars, which was fine with the Carmel Foundation, which has been spearheading the housing project.

"The Carmel Foundation's preference is not to have underground public parking," wrote Bob Priestley in a letter to the city council. "We believe it is generally incompatible with the senior housing project."

The Carmel Foundation said it believed that nine parking spaces would be sufficient to meet the needs of the 23 tenants and their visitors. It is the foundation's belief that most of the people housed at the project would not own a car, Priestley said.

But the foundation also took into consideration the parking problem existing in Carmel and agreed to work in conjunction with the city.

But in doing so several issues were left for council members to ponder. These were: exhaust ventilation in the underground structure, noise suppression, security for the tenants and security against vandalism.

Wright, in his dissenting vote, questioned the advisability of putting an underground garage in an already busy intersection.

Wright said it would be hard to see oncoming traffic when coming up the ramp from the lot's sub-street level.

But one way to alleviate the amount of traffic exiting from the garage, which was discussed at the council meeting, would be to issue permits for merchants to use the facility.

Final studies OK'd on new San Clemente dam

available to the district, Heuer explained, and board member Pat Bernardi referred to it as a "housekeeping chore."

Introduced by Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo, Roseth listed three reasons why the city wanted the board to wait before approving the changes.

The process was "premature" because the numbers were not verified yet, Roseth said, and the assumptions underlying the allocation are in error. By making the adjustments, he said, the board was accepting the allocation as set up as correct. Also, he said, the board should wait until the EIR on the allocation system is complete before action could be taken as a whole.

Buel told the board that both city of Monterey and the county wanted to have the board complete the changes to allow them to continue with their land use plans. The board unanimously approved the adjustments subject to verification of the numbers.

•

IN ANOTHER agenda item, the board approved funding for what it hopes will be the last outside consultant studies needed to complete the EIR/EIS on the proposed San Clemente dam.

"At least I don't think there are anymore," Heuer said, adding "But given the way things have gone in the past..."

Heuer was referring to the many surprises and additional studies the district has had to complete as the EIR/EIS has progressed.

The studies, totaling $108,300 include:

• Retention of EIP Associates for $8,000 to prepare a biological assessment for rare and endangered species. This portion will take about two months, the staff report states, and will include a survey of the Least Bell's Vireo, a rare songbird that might inhabit the proposed dam site.

• Analysis, at an approximate cost of $20,000, of cultural resources at the alternative project sites.

• Retention of Staal, Gardner and Dunne at $25,300 to evaluate impacts of Seaside coastal pumping.

• Retention of Converse Consultants for $4,500 to compile engineering details regarding alternative feasible projects.

• Retention of Converse Consultants for $15,000 to compile a flood inundation impacts analysis. The report will use a computer program to simulate conditions if the dam breaks.

• Retention of Converse Consultants at $45,000 to integrate studies and to reformat into EIS format. Converse will take information gathered for the state EIR and reformat and integrate studies for the federal EIS.

Judge tosses out Laub's countersuit against the city

By DAVID LELAND

FASTER THAN one can say "Clintville," a superior court judge last week threw Paul Laub's countersuit against Carmel out of court, calling it "premature."

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver ruled that in order to file the countersuit, which asked that the city's lawsuit be dropped, Laub would first have to "answer" the charges filed against him last September by the city of Carmel.

Laub has 10 days in which to answer the city's allegations.

The city's complaint alleges that Laub has illegally expanded his operations within "Paradise," a retail store located on the northeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street.

Specifically, the complaint states, Laub is violating the area's commercial zoning code, which makes it illegal to operate a business on any floor but the street level.

Laub sells merchandise, most notably that related with Mayor Clint Eastwood, downstairs in Clintville. He also offers retail goods on the second floor.

The city's position is that Laub never applied for the proper permits to operate additional businesses at that location, which further violates the city code.

If the city wins the suit it could bring up the subject of delinquent back taxes owed the city, according to Mike Stamp, an attorney representing Carmel.

The city had asked Laub to file for the correct permits, but Laub refused and a suit was filed Sept. 3. in Superior Court.

Laub and his attorney, Hugo Gerstl, never answered the city's charges, but instead, filed a countersuit in December.

Silver said on a purely procedural level Laub did not obey the law in not answering the city's charges.

"You shouldn't have done it that way," he said.

But outside the courtroom, Gerstl disagreed, saying that it was not incorrect to proceed the way his client had.

Silver further cautioned Gerstl about language used in petitioning the court.

"You have to be a little more careful about what people are implying," he said.

Silver may have referred to several statements in Laub's defunct suit, such as: "It is my belief that this entire 'witch hunt' disguised as a lawsuit is simply another means of attacking the Laub interests when the city has failed miserably in so many of their attempts to do so."

Laub's lawsuit also makes several other points which he believes prove him innocent of the city's charges. These are:

• There is less retail space being used in the basement of Paradise than there was at the time of the original business license in 1972.

The lawsuit states that two-thirds of the basement floor is used for a printing operation and storage.

The lawsuit declares that this allegation is a "sham, false and frivolous."

• Laub also claimed that the city could not file suit against him for not having the correct permits, as the city had accepted payment for in-lieu parking fees based on retail space.

• Laub disputes that there is a second floor within the Paradise Plaza.

In his suit he states that this is a mezzanine floor, which has been there since 1972.

"I resent the allegations and inferences arising from those allegations that defendants have increased the retail space of the second floor or created new retail uses not authorized by the city," Laub said in his lawsuit.

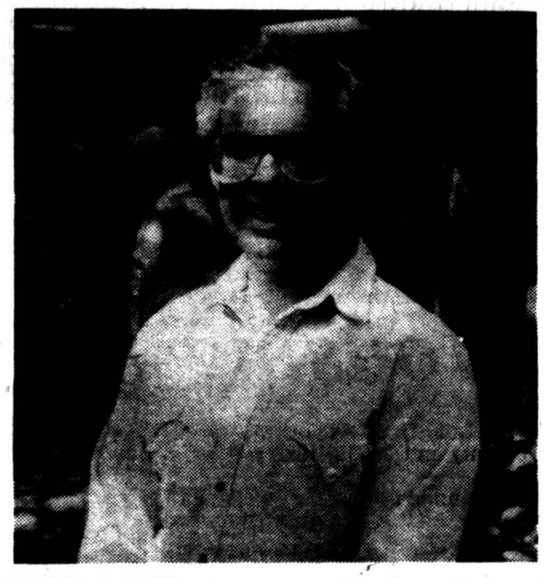
Laub goes on to say that he owns two valid licenses for the sale of general merchandise.

"Thus the allegation that there has been an increase in the size of the mezzanine or the intensification of its uses is sham," he stated.

"There is no requirement of a master use permit because the building has maintained its general character since the construction of the Paradise Plaza mini mall."

Outside the courtroom Laub appeared undaunted as he began to discuss future strategy with Gerstl, but he declined to comment on his plans or reaction to the verdict.

But Laub's views may have been best summed up the day before the hearing as he hung a flag outside his store on Ocean Avenue which read "Don't Tread On Me."



PAUL LAUB, shown outside Paradise, remained undaunted last week as Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver tossed his countersuit to the city out of court. In doing so, Silver gave Laub 10 days to reply to the city's charges, which accuse Laub of operating a business without the proper permits. (Michael Gardner photo.)

New rec commissioners meet for the first time

By DAVID LELAND

THE CARMEL Recreation Committee began its tenure last week by holding a meeting primarily aimed at setting the agency's role in city government.

The seven-member commission, appointed by Mayor Clint Eastwood in December, will serve the city's needs purely on a strategy level, according to Doug Schmitz, city administrator and ex-officio member of the group.

"Your role is setting policy," he said. Schmitz cautioned rec commission members on straying into particular issues. This, he said, is a job for city staff or the Carmel City Council.

Schmitz also told the commission it needed to develop a close relationship with the city's forestry commission.

The forestry commission sets policy for the land in Carmel and the rec commission sets policy for the programs on that land, he said.

The commission was also briefed on state law regarding open meetings, in particular, the Brown Act.

City Atty. Don Freeman told the group of its responsibility to the community in holding public meetings on public issues. While there are matters which can be held in closed session, such as purchasing real estate and some legal matters, Freeman said the rec commission would probably not be confronted with these.

Freeman said the same rules which apply to the city council apply to the rec commission regarding the Brown Act. Specifically posting its agenda 72 hours before a meeting and then sticking to that agenda.

In the past a governmental body could add items to its agenda while in session. But last year, the state legislature amended the Brown Act to prohibit, except in emergencies, addressing non-scheduled issues at a meeting.

Elected as chairwoman of the rec commission was Pat Sippel, while the vice chairman position went to Bob D'Isidoro.

The rec commission will meet at 3:30 p.m. the second Thursday of each month in the council chambers in City Hall.

But due to a holiday which falls in February, the first rec commission will be held on Feb. 19.

•

WHILE LOW key, the first rec commission meeting was an historic occasion, one which has been eagerly awaited by many residents.

Until now, recreation policy in Carmel has been set by the recreation committee. But with the formation of the rec commission, recreation falls under the umbrella of city government.

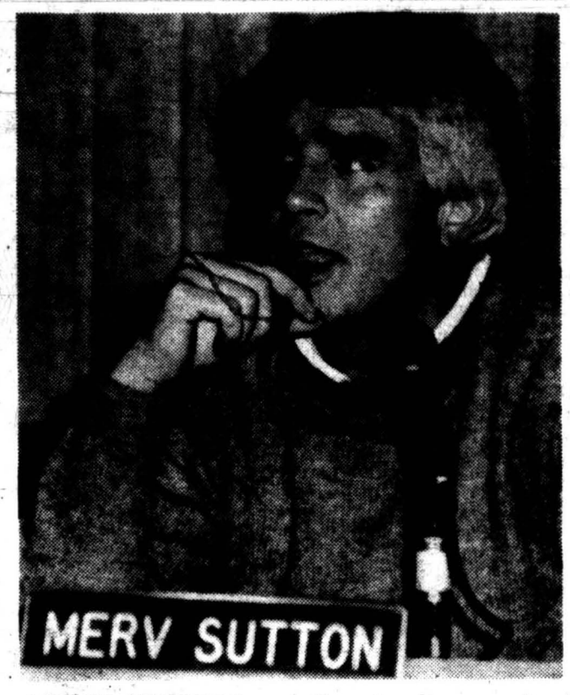
MAXINE JENNINGS, a retired director of community relations at Monterey Institute of International Studies, kept rapt attention at the city's first Recreation Commission meeting.

PAT SIPPEL will be the rec commission's first chairwoman. Sippel, a former recreation committee member, appeared enthusiastic at the rec commission's historic first meeting Thursday. (Mac McDonald photos.)

BOB D'ISIDORO, left, was elected vice-chairman of the newly-appointed rec commission at Thursday's meeting. D'Isidoro is joined by commissioner Richard Falge.



MERV SUTTON, another former member of the disbanded recreation committee, declined a nomination for chairman at Thursday's first rec commission meeting.

within the city, the Carmel Youth Center and the Carmel Unified School District.

In addition to these duties, the commission will also take up where the disbanded rec committe left off in amending a portion of the city's general plan on recreation.

This is a job which was started by the committee several years ago and addresses the city's recreational needs and is made somewhat eaiser for the rec commission in that three of its members served on the rec committee.

Sippel, Harriet Rowntree and Merv Sutton all join the commission as former committee members. The group is rounded out by Maxine Jennings, Richard Falge and D'Isidoro.

The seventh member of the commission is Beth Kastrup, recreation director. Kastrup, who began her duties in November, told the commission last week that, for now, the city's recreational programs would probably stay the same.

Kastrup cited the city's budget as the primary reason for the lack of any changes, but she did say that by this summer Carmel could expect a wider variety of recreational programs.

The other ex-officio member of the rec commission, or non-voting member, is Bob Infelise, CUSD superintendent.

Cachagua area plan needs participation by area residents

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors has appointed a Citizens Advisory Committee to help in developing an area plan for Cachagua, but citizen input is needed.

Public meetings of the committee are held regularly in Cachagua. Residents interested in participating are asked to sign a mailing list at the meetings or by writing directly to:

Cachagua Area Plan Mailing List
Monterey County Planning Department
PO Box 1208
Salinas, CA 93902.

Public participation is encouraged at these meetings to insure that property owners and residents have their concerns reflected in the Cachagua Afea Plan that is to be developed, according to Joel Panzer, county planner.

PERFORMANCE THAT INCREASES YOUR PULSE. AT A PRICE THAT WON'T MAKE YOUR BLOOD BOIL.
These days, many people measure a car's worth in dollars instead of sense. Which means instead of getting a lot of car for the money, they're merely paying a lot of money for a car.
Not so when you buy a Volvo 700 Series Turbo.
For your money, you get a car that's been lauded by Car and Driver for its "...pavement-thumping" power.
A car that's equipped with the luxury features found in cars in a much pricier price range.
And a car that offers "On Call."* The three-year roadside assistance plan that's available free of charge 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Midwinter comparisons

IT'S THE dead of winter. Elsewhere that might conjure up images of hibernations and stark landscapes, treeless vistas and the crunch of snow on icy ground. Here in Junipero Serra's favorite part of California, here in the dead of our winter, we have the wonders of an internationally famous golf tournament just a few weeks away, not to mention an invasion of reporters and television shock troops, golfers and golf fans and groupies in their infinite and startling variety.

No hibernation here. The golf year begins on the greensward of Pebble Beach. If for no other reason, comparison of a winter in Carmel and a winter elsewhere should give us pause to be thankful.

But comparisons, some folks say, are odious. And what, you might well ask, does this have to do with our ongoing discussion of municipal bonds and tax reform?

Only this: comparisons about the mid-winter attractiveness of our peninsula versus other less favoured locales point up the conclusion that comparisons can be very useful and enlightening. Tourists don't visit Podunk in January for golf tournaments or anything else.

So we're encouraging you to do comparisons. Your economic health depends on it. And here's the first of two comparisons you might be interested in; we'll discuss the second comparison next week.

Here's a calculation for your to make to compare the value of the tax-free interest of municipal bonds with the taxable interest of certificates of deposit, corporate or treasury bonds, and stock dividends. Ask your accountant for your estimated federal and state tax bracket under the new law.

Let's assume you'll be paying 38.5 percent on your federal return (the 1987 maximum) and 11 percent on your state return, for a combined effective bracket of about 45.1 percent. If you subtract 45.1 percent (or whatever percentage your combined effective bracket happens to be) from 100, you'll come up with a number called the reciprocal. Let's say the reciprocal for you is 54.9 percent. Divide that number into the interest you could receive on a California municipal and you've just made another useful and intersting comparison. You've discovered the equivalent TAXABLE yield you will have to receive to equal your tax-free return. For example, a 5.49 percent tax-free yield is exactly equal to a 10 percent taxable yield for a person in the 45.1 percent effective combined federal and state bracket, i.e. 5.49 percent divided by the reciprocal 54.9 percent equals 10 percent.

Is one yield better than the other? No tax-free yield is better if you keep less of your income that way. Obviously a taxable yield of 11 percent would be more desirable than the 5.49 percent tax-free example above. Conversely, a 7 percent tax-free yield would be much better than 10 percent taxable (7 divided by 54.9 percent equals a 12.75 percent taxable yield).

Comparisons can be odious, but not if they lead to the pleasures of golfing in paradise in midwinter. Nor are comparisons foolish when your investable dollars still generate a favorable tax-free return under a law that lowers federal tax brackets. Remember: lower tax brackets do not necessarily mean lower taxes. Ask your accountant to explain that puzzler to you. But whatever you do, don't go into hibernation on this issue. Don't make this the winter of your economic discontent.

Free info packet on smoking offered

IN THE wake of the Surgeon General's recent report on the health effects of passive smoking, the American Lung Association of Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo counties is offering the public a free packet of information on the health effects of "secondhand smoke" — smoke from someone else's cigarette.

The packet is available through January by calling the Lung Association at 757-5864 or 425-0336. Included are: a brochure entitled "Secondhand Smoke," a fact sheet on the health effects of involuntary smoking, and "Guide to Restaurants with Non-Smoking Sections" in your area.

Lung Association Program Coordinator Fay Catlett said her association is especially interested in building women's awareness of this health risk since "as a group they have a high exposure to secondhand smoke."

According to the Surgeon General's report, the non-smoking wife of a smoker runs a higher risk of lung cancer than the non-smoking wife of a non-smoker. Also, many offices in which women work are filled with smoke from co-workers. Non-smokers in such environments can absorb as much smoke as if they themselves smoked two or three cigarettes a day.

Also, according to the Surgeon General's report, children in homes where parents smoke have a much higher rate of colds and other upper respiratory infections that children whose parents do not smoke.

"We want to reach mothers with this information because they are in a very good position to police the home environment to ensure that they and their youngsters are not exposed to secondhand smoke," Catlett said.

There are about 4,000 substances in both "mainstream" cigarette smoke (smoke which the smoker inhales) and "sidestream" smoke (smoke which leaves the burning tip of a cigarette and enters ambient air, where it can be inhaled by non-smokers).

Some of these substances — like tars, napthalene, pyrene, carbon monoxide, ammonia and hydrogen cyanide — are toxic. According to the Surgeon General's report, some toxic substances are found in higher concentrations in sidestream smoke than in mainstream smoke. The levels of carbon monoxide, for example, are 2.5 times greater in sidestream smoke.

Carmel Meadows building plans being appealed

By DAVID LELAND

ALTHOUGH FACING strong citizen opposition as well as a negative county planning report, Stephen F. Williams will appeal to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors next week a decision which forbids planned construction on his property in the Carmel Meadows area.

Williams had originally proposed building three residential units on his 5.28-acre parcel of land. But in April 1986, fearing possible density problems, he amended the application to include only two houses with a guest cottage.

His building permit was denied on Nov. 19 by the Minor Subdivision Committee of Monterey County. One week later, Williams appealed the decision, which will be heard at 2:15 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 20, in the supervisors chambers in the courthouse in Salinas.

The Williams property is bordered on the north by the state-owned Odello West property and on the south by Carmel Meadows subdivision. Williams, in his application, asked to have the parcel of land subdivided into two smaller parcels, each 2.64 acres.

While each parcel involves only one house, which Williams intends to put up for sale upon completion, county planners have put a considerable amount of time into this project, according to Nick Chiulos, principal planner.

"For a two-lot subdivision it's gotten a lot of study," he said. But after reviewing all of the data, planners opted to deny the permit.

"The county felt it should not approve a new building site with built-in problems," said Chiulos, who is also secretary of the Minor Subdivision committee.

•

IN ITS findings, county planners cite several reasons for denying the permit. These include environmental, visual, the Carmel Land Use Plan and strong citizen opposition.

According to the Carmel LUP, Williams is permitted to build "up to three sites" on his land, but only if this does not abuse the environmental aspects of the area.

Due to the slope of the land, the planning report states, water run-off will have its course altered if the contour of the land is changed by building.

"This change will impact the adjacent riparian habitat by reducing the extent of the riparian vegetation on the slopes below any development on the proposed Williams parcels," the report states.

Also in accordance with the Carmel LUP, the construction on one of the lots would mean removal of an oak tree to facilitate building and to provide adequate fire protection setbacks and turnaround.

This is a point which is collaborated by Highland Bixby Advisory Committee member Elaine Gloodt.

"The access in case of fire is very poor," said Gloodt, whose county-appointed committee opposes the proposed construction. "There's no place for the fire trucks to turn around."

Another item Gloodt's committee points to is the lack of consistency between what Williams proposes and building stipulations which were required of the adjacent homeowners.

"Even though the present zoning appears not to apply, we don't think he should be let off," she said. "All the people in the neighborhood are opposed to houses being built on those two sites."

Indeed, the county planning report agrees with the citizen's committee, and even suggests rezoning the property to insure proper building — namely adequate setbacks.

Currently a residental area, the planners suggest the Williams property be zoned Scenic Conservation, as should all new subdivisions in this area.

With this type of zoning comes more stringent regulations governing the amount of space needed to build upon.

For example, a minimum frontyard setback of 100 feet is required with this zoning; one of the Williams' parcels shows only a 26 feet frontyard setback, while the other parcel shows only 56 feet in its front yard.

And finally, the planning committee believes that the viewshed of neighboring houses would be restricted with the proposed building on the Williams property.

"...Development on the proposed sites would create an adverse visual impact for the residents of Carmel Meadows and the public at large," the report states. "...Public views from Highway 1, Carmel River State Beach and Carmel River Lagoon would be adversely impacted by the intensification of development on the Williams' parcel."

•

WILLIAMS, HOWEVER, is still not convinced that building two houses on his land would have any adverse impacts on the environment. In fact, he hired three consulting firms to support these findings.

In fact, judging from the appeal that Williams has filed, there is sharp disagreement between his experts and the county planning staff.

For example, Myron Jacobs and Associates, an engineering firm which conducted tests on the soil and possible runoff, came up with a different point of view than the planning report offers.

Its report concludes that "...this project would be able to enhance the environment by controlling erosion problems caused by the neighboring subdivisions."

The report did not include how this would be accomplished, however.

But the land may be in trouble if there is too much precipitation, according to Myron Jacobs.

"Under normal conditions there would be no problem," he said. "But if it rains like in 1983, all bets are off."

Williams also disputes the planning report's charge that natural vegetation would be disturbed if the land was built upon.

His consultants claim that a "project on this site would in fact protect, maintain, enhance and restore the adjacent riparian habitat and would not require the removal of oak trees for construction or for fire protection."

The appeal also states that "...if SC zoning were the correct zoning for the consideration of this application, the proper measurement of front, back and sideyard setbacks as well as minimum building site are consistent with the requirements of SC zoning."

Williams also charges that any decisions rendered by the planning subcommittee are contrary to law because "...they do not contain any factual evidence to support the conclusory statements which are labeled as evidence."

Carmel Red Cross conducts classes in CPR techniques

IN 1986 650,000 people in the United States will die from heart attacks ... fully three quarters of those attacks will happen at home.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation, commonly called CPR, saves approximately 250 lives every day in the United States.

With that in mind the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter of the American Red Cross has launched a campaign to train as many people as possible in CPR techniques.

These classes will teach new standards for opening and maintaining someone's airway, how to breathe for them, perform chest compressions and to do full CPR on adults, children and even infants, said Phil Gray, chapter publicity chairman.

The classes, including demonstrations and lectures, require about four hours to complete. Trained Red Cross CPR instructors will conduct the courses and students practice their skills on mannequins under professional tutelage, he said.

In addition, choking rescue techniques — the famed Heimlich maneuver — will be taught.

Individuals can also take courses in how to take blood pressure, administering first aid, providing disaster relief, and other volunteer assignment opportunities in the Red Cross.

Those completing the CPR course will be awarded Red Cross certificates. Class size, however, is limited. For more information, or to register, call 624-6921.

Wave action

WINTER STORMS brought huge waves to the Monterey Peninsula in the past week as evidenced by these breakers near Carmel Point. So far the area has managed to avoid the punishing storms that battered the Central Coast in 1983. Mornings and evenings have been cold, but sunshine rather than rain has been the order of the day in January so far. Water watchers on the peninsula, however, are hoping for more rain in the coming months to help augment the peninsula's ever-dwindling water supply. Water — or lack of it — will probably be the biggest topic of conversation this year. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Bennett property focus of planning commission agenda

By NANCY HILLS

THE LOUISE Bennett property public hearing is expected to be the focus of the Carmel Planning Commission's upcoming agenda.

The commission will meet 3:00 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 21 in the Carmel City Council Chambers.

Additionally, the commission will review building addition plans to the Carmel Presbyterian Church on the southeast corner of Junipero and Mountain View avenues and will reconsider a denial of an art gallery use permit on Lincoln Street.

All project plans can be seen at the city bulletin board at the Carmel Post Office.

The Louise Bennett property, represented by Carmel attorney George Brehmer, is 56,000 square feet of undeveloped land between San Carlos and Dolores streets and (if extended), Second and Third avenues. Development of the property, particularly the proposed density, has been protested by neighbors during previous planning commission meetings.

The property is a natural water course, inhabited by numerous significant trees and visited often by wildlife, including deer. It also contains a few steeped sloped lots requiring land fill before construction. To develop the site, the water course will be diverted into an underground pipe and drainage system designed by Bestor Engineers.

Before the specific plan can be approved, the commission will have to find that the development of the property has no significant environmental impact, and declare that no environmental impact report is required.

The specific plan the commissioners will consider calls for:

- Eleven residential lots, ranging fron 4,500 square feet to 9,000 square feet in size.
- Of the significant trees, only those which are deemed diseased or considered dangerous will be removed. There are more than 100 trees on the site, 45 of which are deemed significant by the city forester.

In December, the planning commission reviewed building "footprints" developed by the planning staff in an attempt to avoid destruction of as many trees as possible. The "footprints" allowed for setbacks that do not conform to code.

The commission decided to permit Brehmer to retain the setbacks, but not hold the developer to the same building configurations. The trees would have to be preserved.

- Three of the lots will exit directly on Dolores Street, three on to San Carlos and five will access onto a driveway that will connect to Third Avenue. The driveway will use an unimproved portion of Third Avenue currently in use by the Dolores Lodge as a garden.

If the commission approves the plan, it will be presented for city council approval at its February meeting.

•

IN ANOTHER matter, the Carmel Presbyterian Church will present to the commission new plans for a two-story building of classrooms and offices with an underground garage. The plans are a revised version of those presented to the commission last year.

The church is located in the R-1 (residential) district, and there is some question whether new buildings for public organizations are allowed in that zone, explained staff planner Brian Roseth.

The planned structure would have a flat roof and meet the 24 feet height requirement of the R-1 Roseth said, and is designed to avoid a major oak tree on the property.

- The commission will also reconsider a request by Ira and Carol Pomeroy to open a broker style art gallery on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

The space has not previously been used as an art gallery — it was the location of the House of Sweden — and the commission turned down the application. The Pomeroys have revised their application, reducing the number of artists to be represented and including the promotion of local artists.

BUSINESS BEAT

Sweet Dreams

THE NEW year is starting out very sweet for Carmel.

Ice cream, or in this case, gelato, will make a formal return to Ocean Avenue when Michael Lajigian sponsors the official grand opening of Chocolate Dreams as an ice cream parlor, noon to 3 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 20. The shop has actually been open since Dec. 13, but as many businesses do, the grand opening was postponed until things settled down.

Portions of the profits from the sale of gelato, including cones, and frozen yogurt, will go to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, Lajigian said.

The sweet shop, located on the south side of Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets, is the first full ice cream parlor that offers cones in Carmel since Swensen's Ice Cream closed in 1985. It is the first business to open under the special "frozen dessert ordinance" approved last year.

Controversy over Carmel's so-called "ban" on ice cream cones because they are an uncovered takeout food received national attention and became a major issue during the 1985 mayoral campaign.

A question still remains unanswered: Will Carmel's Mayor Clint Eastwood make an appearance to see if the problem is licked?

Well, whether he does or not, the cones will certainly make an appearance.

Outstanding women sought

As a part of the 1987 celebration of Women's History Month this March, the Monterey County Commission on the Status of Women is seeking nominations to name the 10 most outstanding women in Monterey County.

The commission is the coordinating agency for the month-long celebration of the important roles women played in our nation's history.

The commission will accept nominations from individuals, women's clubs and organizations, service clubs and businesses. Nomination forms in both English and Spanish are available at all libraries throughout the county and must be received by the commission no later than Jan. 24.

A selection comittee will meet to consider the merits of each nomination, and then present its recommendations to the commissioners. No woman will be selected whose name was not submitted on an official form.

The 10 women selected from the nominations will be honored during a reception March 22. Commissioner Katrina Doerfler chairs the Women's History Month '87 Committee for the commission on the status of Women, and Commissioner Darlene Dunham heads the Outstanding Women Subcommittee.

For more information, call 372-7662.

Free shuttle revises Sunday hours

The free shuttle serving downtown Monterey, Fisherman's Wharf, Cannery Row and the Monterey Bay Aquarium has cut back its Sunday hours of operation.

The free shuttle now runs from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sundays. It continues to run from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturdays.

Bronzes and paintings exhibited

A collection of paintings and bronzes by Seja Stevenson and Michael Edge will be featured throughout January at the Fort Ord Arts and Crafts Gallery.

The gallery is located in the Fort Ord Art Center, Building 2250, on Second Avenue. Hours are 1 to 10 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends and holidays.

Relaxation, self-massage taught

Sidney Leah Angel leads two new series of classes in relaxation, stretching and self-massage. Awareness of the body and breathing are stressed during the series, which are co-sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula College Adult Education Program.

A series meets 1 to 3 p.m. Tuesdays until June 2 at the Carmel Foundation, Lincoln and Eighth, Carmel.

A second series meets 10 a.m. to noon both Mondays and Wednesdays until June 3 at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center, Ford Road near Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley Village.

Admission is free to both series, but a minimum of 15 participants are needed for the class to take place. For further information, contact the Carmel Foundation, 624-1588; or the Carmel Valley Community Center, 659-3983.

"D" is for Dance

WHAT'S THE latest thing at Carmel High? It's Broadway, baby!

Carmel High's Dance Workshop was in the spotlight last Thursday and Friday night with its spunky "D is for Dancer" performance at Sunset Theater. Dancer/director, Marikay LeValley, in conjunction with an artist-in-resident from the Frohman Academy, Laura Akard, created a melange of song and dance to provide audiences with an hour's worth of artistically choreographed entertainment.

The diversity of all 19 dancers allowed viewers to enjoy all types of dance, such as ballet, modern jazz, soul and folk. This winter's concert also featured a song and dance number performed by two girls from Monterey High School.

It's 8 in the evening, the light from Sunset Theater's ancient iron chandeliers begins to dim, the plush red curtain opens and a hush settles over the audience as they listen to CHS senior Cassie Reece's crystal voice as she sings, Evergreen and Out Here On My Own.

Later on in the show, another strong singer from Monterey High, Anita Smith, sings her own song, Black Butterfly with her dancing counterpart, Carla Stankewitz. When asked what the song means to Anita, she replied, "It symbolized the beauty in life, because I sing about a butterfly opening up and letting everyone see its beauty."

It has been quite some time since Carmel has incorporated song in its dance performances. Hopefully the singing tradition will become more popular in upcoming shows now that Cassie and Anita have already taken that first step to singing in front of a large crowd.

Artist-in-residence Laura Akard also performed a jazzy dance solo. Her quick, lyrical movements clearly showed her expertise from her many years in dance.

Another excellent dancer, Rosina Didyk, helped arrange a Bulgarian folk dance which included her director, Marikay LeValley. Rosina is talented in all types of dance, but her secret passion is Bulgarian folk music. The piece was done in Bulgarian peasant costume including leather, up-turned elf shoes. The music, Dobrudjanska Ruka was quaint and earthy.

The only male in the whole production, Mike Whipple, brought another form of dance to the stage. Mike had fun creating catchy moves and images with soul music. He wore funky clothing, lip synched and added some backup dancers in Pleasure Seekers. Mike had the whole audience gasping with wonder as he moved his body into all sorts of bizarre contortions. At one point his whole body simply vibrated. After the show, Mike said that he wished it wasn't over, "I want to do 10,000 more shows! I love it!

Of the 15 Carmel dancers, 10 are seniors. Since more than half of the Dance Workshop will be graduating, Carmel will be looking for potential dancers for upcoming school years. So, if anyone is interested, please contact Marikay LeValley on campus and talk with her.

Dancing at Carmel is a great way to express one's moods and feelings, and also to meet a bunch of new friends. In the words of Marikay, "Dancing keeps me young. I really get to know the people in the workshop personally and that creates a warm atmosphere in which to work. It keeps dancing alive for me."

The Dance Workshop also puts on a performance each spring, entitled "Dance Connection." The reason for the connection part of the title is that other schools also join with Carmel in the performance. Started in 1980, Dance Connection used to be a combination of only Carmel and Seaside. This year one also can expect to see Monterey, Pacific Grove, Santa Catalina and possibly Carmel Middle school to join the show.

NEW ARTS AND CRAFTS CHORAL SOCIETY BEGINS

With Perry Newberry to furnish the enthusiasm and Thomas Vincent Cator as musical director, the success of the new Arts and Crafts Choral Society is a foregone conclusion.

About 50 singers turned out on Wednesday evening of last week, at the preliminary meeting.

Mr. Newberry started things to humming by explaining the purpose of the organization. It was, he stated, intended as a means of developing musical talent and was all preliminary to public appearances of the society in cantata, oratorio or comic opera.

All residents of Carmel, whether interested in oratorio or opera are urged to enroll tonight at the second meeting of the Arts & Crafts Choral Society at Arts and Crafts Hall.

FISHERMEN OPTIMISTIC DESPITE FEW CATCHES

Fishing at the mouth of the Carmel river is keeping many Carmel fishermen busy trying to catch the steelhead which have been running since last Tuesday, when the bar separating the lagoon from the ocean was opened. As yet, not many catches have been made, and those have been none too large, but with the optimism shown by fishermen everywhere, the crowds continue to gather at the narrow strip of water where the fish rush through on their way to the headwaters of the river.

DIG UP PARK
PUT CARS UNDERNEATH
MARTIN SOLUTION

Esthetics first, public safety next, motorist convenience and economics, last, was the order of importance planning commissioners yesterday afternoon gave factors to be considered in preparing a plan for parking lots for the business district. They all agreed that small landscaped lots dispersed in the residence zone on the periphery of the commercial area were most desirable.

Commissioner John B. Martin agreed with other commissioners that small lot peripheral parking was desirable if money were no object. However, such lots would remove land from tax rolls, whether placed in commercial or residential zones. His idea was to use land now owned by the city.

"Dig up the park! Go underground!" he advocated, and explained that the underground parking facility under Devendorf Plaza would provide 90-100 off-street parking stalls, also give the city a disaster shelter. The park could be replaced after the underground facility was completed Mr. Martin pointed out. Cost of the whole project he estimated at $200,000.

EDITORIAL:..
CITY ADMINISTRATOR

By all objective standards, the system of government in Carmel has been outdated for years. The organization of duties and authority has remained pretty much the same as it was when the city had only a handful of employees and a minimal budget. Now, with a $2 million budget and several full-fledged city departments, Carmel is still trying to run itself as though it were a small town from a different era.

We respect and support the desire to maintain Carmel as preciously small and unique as possible in this day and age of vast modernization and streamlined efficiency. But somebody has to run the city on a daily basis and the council can't do it effectively alone. It needs help in the form of a strengthened city administrator.

RESIDENTS DEMAND PROTECTION FOR SCHULTE ACCESS

Some 60 residents of the Schulte Road bridge area in Carmel Valley petitioned the Board of Supervisors this week to "take more effective measures" to prevent erosion of Carmel River banks.

Property owners will readily give county public works crews access to their property to permit work to be done to reinforce river banks against further damage, the petition states.

It was signed by 66 residents in the area of the bridge — one of 10 spots identified by the Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District for its high erosion potential.

BENJAMIN THE Cat used to sleep in the shops surrounding the mall at Jack London's at Fifth and San Carlos streets before his disappearance two weeks ago. Anyone with information regarding the missing male tabby should alert plaza employees.

Missing: 'Benji the cat'; businesses offer reward

By SALLY FINEGAN

BENJAMIN IS missing.

Benjamin is a 17-going-on-18-year-old cat who makes the shops around Jack London's restaurant on Fifth and San Carlos streets his home. He used to spend his nights in the restaurant, according to restaurant manager Steve Whitfill, but no one's seen Benjamin for at least two weeks, Whitfill said.

The SPCA and Carmel Police Department's animal control have been alerted, mall workers said. The Rox Arcana shop is offering a reward for any information regarding the cat's whereabouts.

Benjamin is a large orange and white short-haired tabby with a stocky build and a square face, not unlike television's Morris the Cat. When last seen, he was wearing a blue velvet collar with a bell.

Before becoming a Carmel cat, Benjamin lived in Scotts Valley for 15 years with Edgar and Judith Hillman. He had shown up on their doorstep as a kitten, said former owner and librarian Edgar Hillman in a telephone interview.

"Then he moved to Carmel," Hillman said. He explained that his son, Andrew Hillman, moved to Carmel and the cat went with him.

"The cat adapted to the place readily," Hillman said. "The people at the Jack London plaza fed him. All the people sort of adopted him."

Hillman's son moved, but the cat stayed, Hillman said.

Benjamin certainly appears to be a popular cat with the people at the mall.

When he had to have oral surgery a few months ago, many people around the mall chipped in for the $200 veterinary bill, said Patricia Stewart, an employee at Rox Arcana. "It was a nice group effort," she said.

Benjamin would also venture across San Carlos Street to the Simic Galleries where someone would feed him and send him on his way again; he usually made his way back to Jack London's or Rox Arcana.

"He was really friendly," said John Wynn, an employee of King of Hearts. Wynn said the cat liked to sleep in the shoe store, on a chair in the sun.

"He used to come in here and sleep all the time," said Vivienne Fein of the Carmel Country House. "He was like a mascot."

The people at the mall said they hope Benjamin's disappearance means someone adopted him.

"We like to picture him lying on a fluffy pillow in a Pebble Beach home somewhere," said Dale Paplham, owner of Rox Arcana.

"He was such a sweet, loving cat," Fein said. "Maybe someone took him home.

"We're really concerned."

Special programs

By SHARRON DOUGLAS

IN ADDITION to the regular strong academic program at River School, several special programs are offered. Classes in art, movement, PE and foreign language are available to the students as part of our enrichment curriculum.

Each year a School Improvement Plan is developed and written by the School Site Council. The council is comprised of parents and staff who, working together, evaluate the current school program and determine means to improve it. One component of the SIP is the enhancement of the curriculum in the areas of movement, art and PE.

Geralyn Maul is the energetic instructor of the art and PE classes. Coming to us from Chico, she has a recreation and crafts background which serves to benefit our students.

The physical education program for the kindergarten and first-grade classes is a movement exploration program. For second through fifth-grades, the students participate in a variety of team and individual sports and games.

Arts and crafts involving various media are taught to all of the classes at River School. Students have an opportunity to express feelings and experiences through art. Recognizing shapes, colors, line, form and other elements of art are included in the curriculum.

Maul shares the children's art by preparing art displays and encouraging participation in various art contests sponsored by local agencies.

Diane Chatwin is the dedicated and creative movement teacher. She has had extensive experience with pre-school through college level students. She demonstrates her expertise and commitment to fitness by presenting to her students a balanced program of cardiovascular fitness, creative movement, and dance activities. The children are active and enthusiastic participants in her classes.

Each spring, Chatwin choreographs, organizes and presents a May Festival in which all classes participate in a dance presentation.

Foreign language classes are also offered before school to students in kindergarten through grade five. Under the aegis of the River School PTA, Spanish and French are taught to interested children.

We are fortunate, indeed, to have the opportunity to present these fine offerings to our students at River School. We are able to do so due to the dedication and commitment of the support staff necessary to make these programs successful.

ROP students enter job market with an edge

By SALLY FINEGAN

SUE WILLIAMS-PIERIK spread out business cards on a classroom table. It might seem like an odd job for a high school teacher, but Williams-Pierik was showing off her students' work.

Williams-Pierik teaches Regional Occupation Program (ROP) Design at Carmel High School. Her students learn about the field of design — what types of jobs are available and the skills and education required.

Among the many projects her students complete in a year of study are designing their own business cards. "Imagine what an edge these students have when they go to an employer and hand him or her their own cards," she said.

The ROP was created by the state to teach high school students entry-level job skills, Williams-Pierik said.

"The Carmel Unified School District has participated in ROP since 1975," said Chuck Phillips, CUSD director of educational services. More than 200 students from seven school districts participate in about 60 courses, he said.

Thus among Williams-Pierik's 30 students are not only Carmel High students, but also Monterey High and Pacific Grove High students.

Other area ROP classes give students training in jewelry making, fashion merchandising, animal care, household maintenance and photography, Williams-Pierik said.

"It's really neat because all the schools participate," she said.

Williams-Pierik said many of her students find jobs or pursue further studies in design as a result of her class. Her students have found employment designing business cards and serving as artists' assistants. One student is working at a frame shop, another is a researcher for a Carmel gallery, and still another is training to be a docent at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, she said.

ROP Design students meet in two-hour blocks five times per week, Williams-Pierik said. They study all aspects of design, including graphic design, computer-assisted design, architecture and interior design, illustration and fashion design, three-dimensional design and photography as a design tool.

Along the way the students learn some skills and receive information about further education, she said. They learn about job availability and meet professionals in the field.

•

BESIDES HANDS-ON experience, they leave the course with a portfolio of 10 to 15 works to show off to employers, she said.

"The big thrust is that each student puts together a portfolio of work," Williams-Pierik said. "That's one of the biggest calling cards for this class because so many employers and colleges are requiring portfolios."

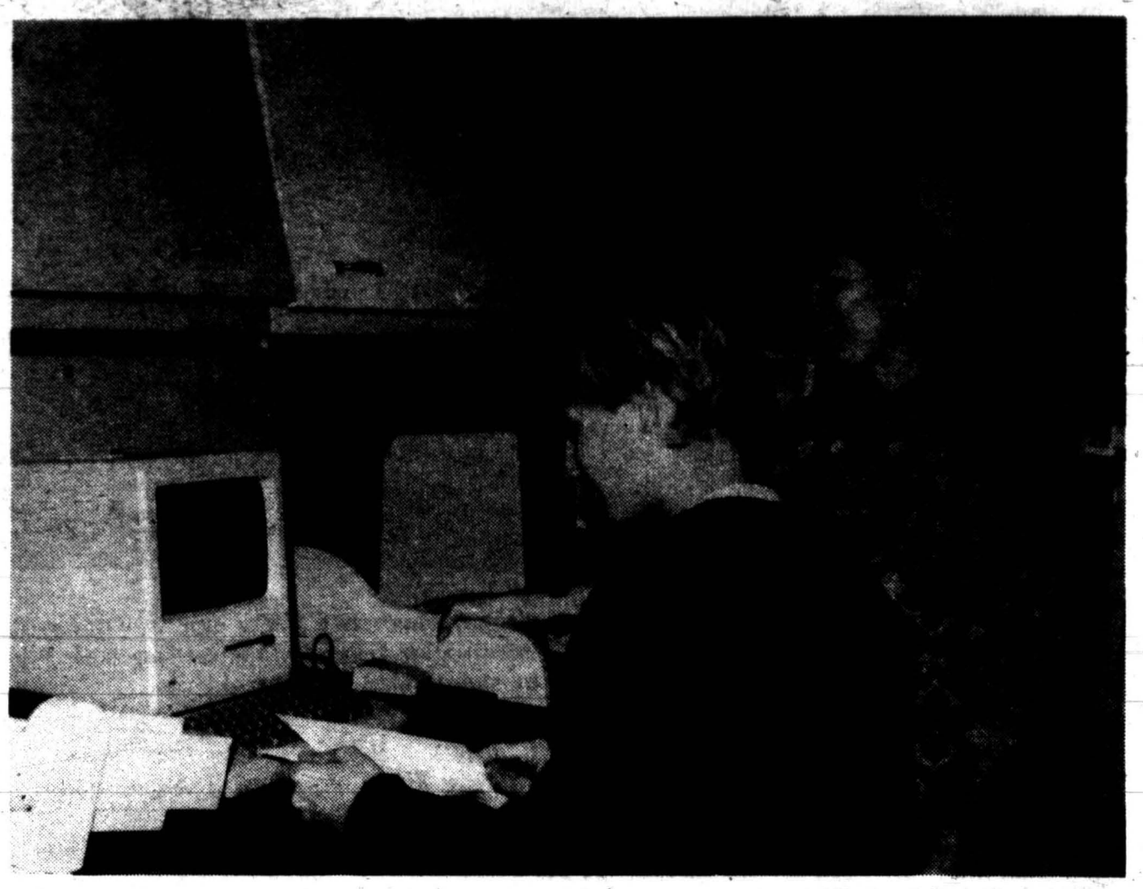
The business cards these students might be presenting to potential employers or college recruiters were, for the most part, created on Apple MacIntosh 512K computers, she said. (With the help of an educational discount, the high school purchased four of the computers and two Imagewriter printers at last school year's end for about $10,000.)

Last week Williams-Pierik's students were working on an architectural project. The project required them to design their own ideal work space and then to draw a professional floor plan, giving them hands-on experience in interior design, Williams-Pierik said.

Their next project will require them to complete a series of self-portraits, she said, explaining that many colleges list self-portraiture among the work they like to see.

After that, the course will emphasize finding a job, she said.

But one student didn't seem to want to wait that long. He offered to design a business card for a classroom visitor for $30.



AS PART of the ROP program at Carmel High School students are learning to use personal computers to study architectural design. Here, Scott Cramlet, a senior, receives some jovial guidance from art teacher Sue Williams. (David Leland photo.)

New school bus enlivens Big Sur school field trip

By SALLY FINEGAN

CHILDREN FROM Captain Cooper School in Big Sur greeted a post-Christmas present too big to wrap with cries of excitement and cheers last week. It was a shiny new yellow school bus decorated with a red ribbon.

About 30 children had ridden their old bus from their elementary school in Big Sur to the Pupil Transportation Facility behind Carmel Middle School to pick up the new bus. There the new bus, purchased with $47,507 in lottery funds, waited in the center of the lot for the children and their driver.

As the old bus — wearing hand-painted posters — pulled into the yard, the children inside waved signs reading, "We like our new bus" and "Great going."

"Goodbye old bus," said some of the children as they clambered off the aging 1972 vehicle. The bus had logged more than 279,000 miles (40,000 miles more than the distance between the earth and the moon). It was driven away to a corner of the yard where it will serve as a spare.

The children had written stories for the occasion:

• "Boy it's nice to have a new bus
Up and down roads
Sure is great."

• "Buses are neat when you go
Up and down hills and
Sometimes we go to the state park."

They scrambled aboard the new 66-passenger school bus. "They're really anxious," said Paula Walling, kindergarten and first-grade teacher at Captain Cooper School.

The adults present seemed enthusiastic too. "This is an exciting day," said Bob Douglas, principal of Captain Cooper School.

Some of the children were persuaded to get off their new bus for a few moments to pose for photographs with Carmel Unified School District officials.

School district officials attending the bus exchange ceremony included Bob Infelise, superintendent; Vance Baldwin, assistant superintendent; Ed Goodrick, director of operations, and Dr. Hilton Bialek, president of the school board.

The ceremony at end, the children climbed aboard their new bus for a field trip. They were going to visit historic sites in Monterey, including the Custom House and Pacific House, Walling said.

At the end of the day the new bus would take them all home, she added.

IT WAS a joyous crew of Captain Cooper School children who gathered to board the new bus Carmel Unified School District bought for the Big Sur school. Participating in the key-exchange ceremony (left to right), were Ed Goodrick, director of operations; Dr. Hilton Bialek, president of the school board; Bob Douglas, principal of Captain Cooper School and Jean Krausfeldt, Captain Cooper School bus driver. CARMEL MAN PROMOTED

Golden Gate University of San Francisco has promoted Gordon Cubbison of Carmel to the rank of Senior Adjunct Professor.

Cubbison teaches courses in business, public and interpersonal relations at the university's Monterey campus.

Golden Gate president, Dr. Otto Butz, cited Cubbison's "more than 30 semesters of outstanding service as a member of the faculty" on a commemorative plaque awarded to him.

Cubbison, who holds degrees from the University of Utah and the Stanford Graduate School of Communication and Journalism, taught previously at Boston University.

He is the proprietor of Motivation Consultants, a personnel training agency. A retired Army officer, he saw action overseas in the Phillipines during World War II, and later in Korea. He also has been awarded three George Washington Medals by the Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge.

DAR FLAG PRESENTATION

Thursday, Jan. 8, Colleen Harris representing the Commodore Sloat Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution presented an American flag to Brownie Troop 2080 of the Junipero Serra School in Carmel. Leaders Terri Bohn and Pam Guilardi accepted the flag which was needed by the troop. The presentation was made on the troop's regular meeting day and came at a time when the troop was learning how to plan ceremonies and was particularly appropriate timing, according to the leaders.

RICH WARD NAMED EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF MONTEREY COUNTY SPCA

J.T. Hollister, DVM and President of the Board of Directors of the Monterey County SPCA, announced today that Rich Ward will be the Executive Director of MCSPCA effective Feb. 1. Following the potluck luncheon to be held noon Tuesday, Jan. 20 at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, Good Citizen Awards will be presented to high school seniors of the Monterey Peninsula. This is an annual event and Marilyn Owen, chairman, says that leadership, dependability, service and patriotism are the criteria by which the committee makes the final selections.

Conservation will also be highlighted as Mark Silberstein, program director at the Elkhorn Slough National Estuarine Reserve at Moss Landing, will present a slide program titled "Mysteries of our Coastal Wetlands." Program chairman is Laverne Underwood; Colleen Harris is luncheon coordinator and will be assisted by Mickey McKee, Ann Irwin and Jean Goddard.

The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution has mandated a 1986-1987 theme as follows "do

Evoking healthy laughter

TONY RANDALL'S favorite opera singer is Sherrill Milnes and his favorite artist is Picasso. Although he does not paint or sculpt himself, he is an aficionado of the arts with a special passion for the opera. Asked if he had ever made a movie on the Monterey Peninsula, he replied, "I've made several in San Francisco. Does that count?" (No, it doesn't).

Of course, we are referring to the Tony Randall, movie, television and stage actor who was guest speaker for the Auxiliary and the Community Hospital Foundation Annual Meeting and Luncheon on Saturday. Mr. Randall gave a short humorous talk that only touched on his 10-year interest in the Myesthenia Gravis Foundation and the American Cancer Society.

His repartee to "Why are you making this speech?" was "Greed." Later he said the speaker's fee would do a lot to "keep Mrs. Randall in French provincial furniture."

His serious words about his profession (of some 50 years) was "Acting is part of everyday life. Real acting is the truth — living it out."

This annual event is part business, as well as social and fun. The social and fun part is a token of appreciation for the volunteer hours generously given each year.

Thomas Tonkin, president of the foundation, welcomed the guests, and Dr. Theodore Hooker, chairman of the board, announced that the new Outpatient Service Center will be in use within a year and reported that 1,700 future taxpayers were introduced to the world at Community Hospital this past year (a 15 percent increase over the previous year). He expressed appreciation for the gift of Mayor Clint Eastwood to the Recovery Center for drug problems.

Jean Warriner, president of the Auxiliary for 1985-86, noted that more than 100,000 volunteer hours of service were given by members last year.

Marguerite Evans, 1987 president of the Auxiliary, along with her staff, was introduced. Dorothy Wick is chair of the Inservice Council and she was recognized along with her council members.

The luncheon preceeded by a social hour was attended by 950 volunteers and supporters.

KITTY'S LUNCHEON

As is her custom, gracious Kitty Ragsdale started the New Year with a champagne luncheon in the Captain's Table room at the Monterey Beach Hotel overlooking Monterey and the bay.

The table tableau held profusions of white roses, white gardenias and baby's breath topped with white doves of peace. Kitty's personal touch is to bring all flatware and napery from her personal treasure chest.

This time it was a banquet of food and music. Mary Lee Sunseri (with guitar accompaniment) sang French, German, Irish, English and American songs to soothe the ears. The piece de resistance was her rendition of "K-K-K-Kitty" with guests joining in.

To the delight of everyone, the dancing dolphins came down to surf-swim near the beach — making their discreet appearance between the spinach salad (with mandarin

Attending were Estelle Brucato (Kitty's sister), Doris Bissell, Sister Carlotta, Sister Claire, Andrea Doneux, Artie Early, Ruth Fletcher, Camilla May, Nell Meyer, Suzanne Obaid, Joan Pease, Helen Spangenberg, Virginia Stanton and yours truly. Gail Compton was unable to attend.

FROHMAN FANS COME ALIVE!

The Frohman Fan Club is alive and well and going-strong-all-over-the-Monterey-Peninsula. The Frohman Academy, beginning its fourth year, needs community support for several reasons. First, with the Wharf Theatre's change of creative focus (in the Academy hands), there will be a new look and new comfortable seating for opening night set for Feb. 14th. The opening musical is Starting Here, Starting Now with a pro cast and a premiere gala to follow at Domenico's Restaurant.

Now, about those comfortable seats. The first fundraiser for Frohman fans is the sale of 160 seats. For $250 your name goes on the seat and it can be yours for all shows. If you sign up before opening night, you are an honorary guest at the Valentine's Day opening night for the gala (for which tickets will be $40).

The reasons that community support for Frohman are so important: first, there is a need for money for growth; second, community involvement stimulates grant giving; third, you will see professional performers; fourth, a number of other areas throughout the country have made offers to the academy to move the school.

At the Frohman Fan Club meeting last week school officials and parents raved about the benefits to the youths of this area. So, it is vital to maintain and support this cultural asset here.

Call 625-9900 to become a Frohman Fan Club member, to volunteer time, and to offer your support with $$$. For the annual Fan Club dues of $25 you receive priority theater

"My name is John, and I'm an alcoholic. I'm your neighbor."

"By the time I got to the Recovery Center, I had been drinking and using for 24 years and it was obvious I was killing myself. When I think about what it was like, I remember the daily physical agony—the complete and total agony from drinking.

"There was a sense of complete desperation when I went into the Recovery Center. But it was obvious these people were there to help me. Once I got sober, I was able to deal with other problems. I was able to accept the fact that I'm also manic depressive, and to seek help.

"The Recovery Center not only helped me to face my alcoholism, but gave me the hope that I could live comfortably, as other people do.

"Now that my manic depression has stabilized and I've been sober more than a year, I'm working on another problem—dyslexia—by going to college.

"My life has become a rational experience; I'm not driven through one day to the next. My wife and kids are more comfortable around me. And the Recovery Center has made it all possible."

PANEGYRIC FOR ROBINSON JEFFERS 100TH BIRTHDAY

Tor House devotees, poets, scholars, and a couple of actors filled the Fiesta Room of Hacienda Carmel on Saturday evening for the kick-off celebration for Robinson Jeffers' 100th birthday.

Dr. Robert Hass, distinguished poet, author of two books, and editor of Random House Selected Poems of Jeffers, was guest speaker. Dame Judith Anderson drove up from her home in Santa Barbara and received a standing ovation after reading works of her friend, Robinson Jeffers.

Leigh Wiener, Los Angeles photographer, knocked on Mr. Jeffers' door in 1956 and asked if he could take his picture — to which Mr. Jeffers reply was "Why?" The answer: "Because I think you will be declared the greatest poet of the 20th century." The next question fired back at him, "Have you read my works?" "Yes." "What did you think of them?" "I didn't understand a lot of it."

Then came a gracious, "Please come in." Mr. Wiener spend four and a half days with Mr. Jeffers and displayed some of the photographs of Jeffers and his family at the Panegyric. Mr. Wiener's recent portraits of Dame Judith will be given to Tor House.

When introduced to Mayor Clint Eastwood Dame Judith asked, "Weren't you a spear carrier in Medea?" The mayor replied, "No, I wasn't." However, a portion of the mayor's movie Eiger Sanction was filmed in the dining room of Tor House. (Was the mayor wearing a Tor House tie with his dapper suit?).

Dr. George White, president of Tor House Foundation, was master of ceremonies.

AUTOGRAPH PARTIES PLANNED

For all you chefs, friends of chefs, and those who love to eat, there are a couple of opportunities looming ahead.

Highlands Inn will be host to Martha Stewart Jan. 24 from 12 to 1:30 p.m. She will autograph copies of her latest books: Entertaining, Hors d'Oeuvres and Pies and Tarts.

Most of you will remember that Ms. Stewart visited Monterey before, talked to a packed crowd at Macys and charmed her way into the hearts of many local hostesses and hosts. She has been invited to be a celebrity judge for the Monterey Vineyard/March of Dimes Gourmet Gala at the Monterey Sheraton. As one of America's most successful party advisors (and givers) she is a contributing editor to House Beautiful and among her clients are the Paul Newmans.

Formerly a successful stockbrocker, she turned to food and entertaining because "it was more fun." She says: "I can only survive in an occupation with constant challenge and variety and cooking fills that need." All who have slaved over a hot stove know that challenge.

The Sheraton will present the remarkable young chef Jeremiah Tower Jan. 23 from 2 to 4 p.m. in Ferrante's Restaurant. He is another member of the judging panel for the Gourmet Gala.

Chef Tower owns the new Stars Restaurant in San Francisco and many will remember him as head chef of Chez Panisse in the '70s. He will be autographing his New American Classics — a collection of his best recipes.

We feel certain that with a measure of smiles and a cup full of charm these two famous authors will solve any cooking problems that have caused you to boil over. Besides, by giving the books as gifts, maybe your friends and family members will solve your cooking problems by cooking for you.

With Doris Day, Burgess Meredith, Reggie Jackson and scads of other celebrities attending, it is not surprising. Top ticket price is $50 for screening and party, with others at only $25. However seating is limited, so keep that in mind.

Just added to the list of celebrities attending the Monterey Film Festival: Katherine Ross, Katherine Helmond, Doug McClure, Sam Elliot, and Sybil Danning. Ross, you may remember co-starred in Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, Helmond will premiere her new movie, McClure was a regular on The Virginian, Elliot recently appeared in Mask and Sybil is "Queen of the B's." Remember you heard it here first.

Chuck (Charles F.) Wilder had great memories that came alive when he attended the MIIS Friends party in the Gen. Stilwell home in Carmel. His first visit to the home was to attend an open house given by the general before Pearl Harbor (early in 1941). Chuck, not a service career man but one who was invited by Uncle Sam, missed going to China and Burma because someone brought the mumps to his barracks. The sequel: He missed going to the Phillipines (and consequently the death march) — thus he is alive to remember. He reminisced with both Stilwell daughters during the Friends of MIIS party.

KING ON CANNERY ROW

Lance McClair, mayor of Seaside, will preside over unveiling ceremonies of "King on Cannery Row" at 6 p.m. Friday, Jan. 16 at Spirit of Monterey Wax Museum on Cannery Row. Peninsula mayors and other diginitaries are expected to join McClair in the celebration honoring Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday. The highlight will be the unveiling of a life-sized wax sculpture of King created by London's famed Tussaud Studios with the help of new museum owner George Drucker.

Also expected to speak are Calvin Nance of the Pan Hellenic Council and Rev. H.H. Lusk, president of the Ministerial Alliance.

The unveiling is free to the public from 6 to 7 p.m. and will be followed by a champagne and hors d'ouevres reception at the Captain's Galley restaurant. Admission to the reception is $12.50, with proceeds to benefit the Seaside Youth Commission.

Restaurant owner John Stidham will donate an additional 20 percent of the gross receipts for the evening to the youth organization.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Birthday parade will start at noon Monday, Jan. 19 at the Friendship Baptist Church at Broadway and Flores in Seaside and proceed to King Middle School.

For information contact Cimarron Conway at 375-1788 or George Drucker at 375-3770 or Seaside City Hall.

Outdoor singles plan outings

New activities are planned each month during the Monterey Outdoor Singles potluck. The group is composed of predominantly single adults who enjoy outdoor activities. Ages range from 25 to 50 and members have a variety of backgrounds and professions.

For more information, call Cecilia Rogers at 625-2092.

Soviet, French films screened

The Monterey Institute International Film Series will present Shadows of Forgotten Ancestors (Wild Horses of Fire, Without Witness and Forbidden Games.

Directed by Sergei Parajanov, Shadows of Forgotten Ancestors is a 1964 film from the Ukraine that combines Carpathian legend with dazzling cinematography. Film Comment reported of the movie, "The most unorthodox, colorful, religious and erotic film ever made in the Soviet Union."

It will be shown in Ukranian with English subtitles on Thursday, Jan. 15.

A 1985 Russian release, Without Witness, will be shown Friday through Sunday, Jan. 16-18. The film offers a psychological war-of-words in the best tradition of Chekhov and Gorky. It is shown in Russian with subtitles, and features Irina Kupchenko and Mikhail Ulyanov.

Rene Clement directed the Wednesday, Jan. 21 film offering, Forbidden Games. A classic of the French cinema, Forbidden Games is a poignant yet humorous outcry against war. The story concerns two French children who imitate the adult world that surrounds them during German occupation.

All films begin 8:15 p.m. in Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Tickets are $3.50 general, $3 students, $2.75 senior citizens.

OBITUARIES

Roy I. Gorrell

Memorial services took place Jan. 6 at St. Mary's by-the-Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove for Roy I. Gorrell, a retired contractor, who died Jan. 2 at his Carmel home. He was 71.

Born Aug. 12, 1915 in Casper, Wyo., he lived on the Monterey Peninsula for 42 years.

During World War II, he served in the Merchant Marines and operated a maritime repair business in San Francisco until the end of the war.

As a part-owner of Crescent Construction Co. with current offices in Seaside, he was instrumental in the building of numerous residential and commercial developments such as Mission Fields and Fisherman's Flats.

He also served on the board of directors of Old California Title Co. and was a 40-year member of the Elks Club.

Survivors include his wife, Dorothy; a son, Ron of Monterey; a daughter, Linda Singletary of Carmel; a sister, Marge Fritz of Casper, Wyo., and four grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions to St. Mary's or the donor's favorite charity.

Noel Van Bibber

Cremation took place for Noel Osborne Van Bibber, a former businessman and 20-year resident of Carmel, who died Dec. 29 in Sequim, Wash. He was 98.

Born Oct. 24, 1888 in Eastport, Maine, he graduated from the University of Maine as a civil engineer.

In 1920 he and his wife O'Enone went to British Honduras (now Belize) where he worked as an overseer for United Fruit Co.'s mahogany cutting and exporting operation.

Following the devastating hurricane of 1933, the family returned to Downey, where they lived until moving to Carmel in 1939. There they purchased and developed the Carmel Cottage Court motel on Carpenter Street, where they remained until moving to Sequim in 1959. They remained in the motel business until Mrs. Van Bibber's death in 1967.

Survivors include two sons, Noel C. of Carmel and Lachlan of Desert Hot Springs; two granddaughters and two great-grandsons.

Ashes were inurned at Mission Memorial Park in Seaside.

Claire McAnear

Memorial services took place Jan. 5 at St. Mary's by-the-Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove for Claire McAnear of Pebble Beach, who died Dec. 29 at Monterey Convalescent Hospital. She was 88.

Born April 8, 1898 in Sacramento, she was a real estate developer on the peninsula for 20 yeras before retiring in 1960.

She was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and the Junior League of Sacramento.

Survivors include several nieces and nephews, including Suzanne Hurtzig of Pacific Grove. Her late husband was Francis McAnear.

Inurnment took place at El Carmelo Cemetery. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Forget about worry

From the Feb. 11, 1982 Carmel Pine Cone

One of the most popular of human pastimes is worrying. Men seem to delight in remaining in a perpetual state of anxiety. They convince themselves that there is a certain majesty and glory in cherishing and cousining gloom.

"Worry is the interest paid by those who borrow trouble."

In the fifth century, B.C., the Greek slave Aesop of Samose in his fable of the country and city mouse wrote: "A crust of bread eaten in peace is better than a banquet partaken in anxiety."

We have often heard Robert Jones Burdette's observation: "There are two days in the week left sacredly free from fear and apprehension. One of these days is yesterday and the other I do not worry about is tomorrow. It isn't the experiences of today that drive men mad. It is the remorse for something that happened yesterday and the dread of what tomorrow may disclose."

Corum Jackson, one of the founders and charter members of the Carmel Rotary Club, had a congenital dislike for singing at meetings. He would not have tolerated this World War I song of 1915.

"What's the use of worrying, it never was worthwhile. So pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile!"

Oh Lord, your devoted servant Robert Louis Balfour Stevenson observed that "no duty we so much underrate is the duty of being happy."

Literacy tutor training offered

The Salinas Adult Reading Program seeks volunteer tutors to help combat illiteracy. A free training workshop will be offered 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Santa Lucia Library, 615 Williams Road, Salinas.

To register and for information, call the Santa Lucia Library or Pat Jones, 758-7340.

Counseling Center Trains Volunteers For Crisis Line

The Community Counseling Center will be offering a weekend seminar on counseling and crisis intervention skills for people interested in volunteering on the center's 24 hour crisis line. The training will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 7 and 8 at the Counseling Center on 590 Pearl St. in Monterey. For details, call Helen DiLorenzo at the Community Counseling Center at 373-4773.

Volunteer counselors learn and develop communcation and counseling skills in order to handle a wide variety of calls on the crisis line. In addition, volunteers provide information and referrals to clientele about communty services. Education and training are ongoing learning opportunities for the volunteer counselors.

The Community Counseling Center provides counseling and crisis intervention services to youth and families on the Monterey peninsula. These include individual and family counseling, runaway services, parent education groups, a schools' program and community outreach. Trained volunteer counselors cover the 24 hour crisis line and act as an important link between community resources and people in need of services.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

The U.S. Census Bureau has been looking into its crystal ball and making projections into the next century. If the bureau is right, growing older is the trendiest thing we can be doing. Among the bureau's prognostications are: by 2025 older Americans will represent one-third of the voting population, compared with one-fifth today; the 85-plus age group will more than double in number between 1980 and 2000; the 60-plus population, now about 39 million, will reach 80 million by 2025; and by 2015, Americans over 65 will be equal in number to children under 18.

While comedians often joke about prunes being strictly a diet item for doddering old folks, it turns out that prunes are among the most nutritious and healthy of foods for people of all ages. If your doctor advises a high-fiber diet, prunes are one of the richest sources of fiber; they have no cholesterol and are rich in potassium, iron and Vitamin A.

Del Monte PETS

CARMEL VOICE

By Sam Salerno

Golfing brothers

YOU NEVER never know who you're going to meet on the golf course. Ran into Pete Incaviglia and brother Tony at Rancho Canada last week. Pete (Texas Ranger baseball star) was home to visit the folks during the holidays. He gave me a bear hug and believe me, he's huge! Pete bench presses as much as the NFL football players. No wonder he hit 30 homers for the Rangers last year. He resides in Arlington, Texas.

HE'LL KEEP YOU SMILING

Dr. Brad Carl, Carmel dentist who played in the Spalding Invitational (one round with Willie Wood, who took second place), back recently from a seminar in Los Angeles where he learned a new modern dental technique called "Implant Dentistry." Dental implants, we learn, help prevent the premature loss of remaining teeth and are a good investment in oral health. Dr. Carl never leaves a stone unturned in his professiona, always associating himself with the latest in modern dentistry. Congratulations, Brad!

FRUGALITY BRINGS WEALTH

Bud Allen, whom we understand recently sold the Sundial Lodge for $3.8 mil has been in Australia the past month, and to show his frugality, called the Red Lion Tavern "collect" and would you believe, Ernie Williams (one of the owners) accepted the call. Bud was checking on whether he won a football bet. The call cost Williams $14.57. The rich get rich, and the poor have children!

SOMETHING ALWAYS HAPPENING

What with the Monterey Film Festival in February, I envision a full calendar of popular scheduled events on the peninsula. Eventually, there will be no tourist lull with the Spalding, AT&T, Film Festival, Concours d'Elegance, Laguna Seca races, Monterey Jazz Festival, etc. Good for the local business folk who have to pay exorbitant rental space. Now if they get a "live wire" convention group to help fill the hotel rooms, the area will be busy year round. This was a proposal I made in a speech to Carmel Kiwanis members some 18 years ago.

GOLF COLLECTOR

There are golf paraphernalia collectors and there are collectors, but none with the depth of Bill Belleci, who has a portion of his collection (in time for the AT&T) on display in the window of Goldsmith Jewelers in Monterey, where he is employed. Bill has been at it for more than 20 years and among the clubs and golf artifacts in his collection is the driver that Johnny Miller used to win the U.S. Open in 1973. Check it out!

WHERE OH WHERE ARE THE TABLES AND CHAIRS?

There was some discussion about those popular tables and chairs at the Village Corner Restaurant and why owner Bob Carlisle replaced them? Well, nothing is ever wasted in Carmel...those benches and chairs were donated by Carlisle to the Carmel Youth Center. Bravo, Bob!

CHECK THE LABEL

Mr. & Mrs. Dick Buxton and son Jeff from Marin County, having dinner with this reporter last week at Delfino's in the Monterey Plaza and were they steaming! Dick, who is a "good spender" and never one to question a bill, was livid when the bill came. His son, Jeff, ordered an after-dinner drink in the form of port (don't recall the label) but the vintage was never mentioned by the waiter. Well, what they served was a 1963 vintage port at $17.50 per glass. That's $70 for four tiny glasses of port. Well, Buxton hit the ceiling because he felt, as I did, the vintage should have been mentioned by the waiter. The hotel has enough problems and an incident of this kind simply amplifies the situation. So, friends, check the label!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, FRANK

A birthday party for Frank Sinatra was held recently at the home of Rolf Schultz of Pebble Beach. The party was attended by a host of friends, including his honor, Mayor Clint Eastwood. Unfortunately, Mr. Sinatra was not present. He's in Hawaii filming an episode of Magnum P.I. with Tom Selleck. In his absence, Sinatra records were played to create the right atmosphere. Mr. Schultz is president of Simplex Tours of Pebble Beach. The affair was catered by Hans Munck, Your Maitre D'.

IS IT TRUE?

Two restuarants have closed in the area...Pomodoro's in the Barnyard and McAbee Beach Cafe on Cannery Row. Don't have the answer but you can rest assured rent plays a major part in all these closures. Too bad!

See you next week.

Bay Symphony to present musical best of Broadway

THE BEST of Broadway will be revived during a two-concert series presented Sunday and Monday, Jan. 18-19, by the Monterey Bay Symphony. I Cantori di Carmel Music Director Sal Ferrantelli will lead the chamber orchestra.

The concerts will take place Sunday at Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel; and Monday at the Hartnell College main stage, 156 Homestead Blvd. at West Alisal Street in Salinas. Both concerts will begin at 8 p.m.

Featured soloists will be sopranos Carole Powell and Caterina Micieli, mezzo soprano Linda Purdy and tenor Gene Albin. William Purdy will provide commentary on the music.

SOPRANO Carole Powell will join the Monterey Bay Symphony during its next two-concert series.

SAL FERRANTELLI, conductor of I Cantori di Carmel vocal group, will also lead the next Bay Symphony series.

LINDA PURDY, mezzo soprano, will be featured during the Bay Symphony's salute to Broadway.

ARTS & LEISURE

Also scheduled to join in this selection of show tunes will be the barbershop quartet, The Monterey Bay Sound. The quartet features Dennis Truckenbrod as lead singer; Jeb Morris, tenor; Don Sprouse, baritone, and Mac McCollough, bass.

Among the selections to be performed will be medleys from Oklahoma!, My Fair Lady, The Music Man (including Lida Rose by the Monterey Bay Sound), Man of La Mancha, Brigadoon and That's Entertainment.

A tribute to Sigmund Romberg will showcase The Desert Song, One Alone, Golden Days and Softly as in a Morning Sunrise.

The conductor for this series, Sal Ferrantelli, received his doctorate degree under the guidance of Julius Hereford at Indiana University. He taught at San Diego State University and received a teaching appointment at Monterey Peninsula College in 1981.

Soprano Carole Powell has toured the United States, Canada and Mexico with the Metropolitan Opera National Company.

Linda Purdy, mezzo soprano, has soloed with several organizations, including the Carmel Bach Festival; the Modesto, Monterey County and Monterey Bay symphonies; Roger Wagner Chorale; Los Angeles Sinfonia Orchestra and the Goldovsky Opera Theatre based in New York City.

Tenor Gene Albin graduated with honors from the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y.

William Purdy received his master's degree from Mills College, where he studied composition under the French composer Darius Milhaud and the American Leon Kirchner.

Admission to the concerts is $15 per person at the door. Seating is reserved in Carmel, open in Salinas. Group rates are available by calling the symphony office at least one day prior to the concerts.

From the Monterey Peninsula call 372-6276 and from Salinas call 424-5502.

Soni Ventorum Wind Quintet to perform in Carmel

THE SONI Ventorum Wind Quintet will be presented by the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula on Friday, Jan. 16 at Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. The concert will begin at 8 p.m.

The Quintet with Felix Skowronek, flute; Laila Storch, oboe; William McColl, clarinet; David Kappy, horn, and Arthur Grossman, bassoon, will perform Mozart's Andante in F major, K. 616 and Adagio and Allegro in F minor, K. 594; Francaix's Quintette; Villa-Lobos' Bachianas Brasileiras No. 6 for flute and bassoon; and Reicha's Quintet in E-flat major, Op. 88 No. 2.

The Soni Ventorum Wind Quintet was formed in 1961 when Pablo Casals invited its members to become the woodwind faculty of his newly founded Conservatory of Music of Puerto Rico. Casals called the Quintet "...one ofthe finest groups of its kind."

THE SONI VENTORUM Wind Quintet with Felix Skowronek, flute; Laila Storch, oboe; William McColl, clarinet; David Kappy, horn; and Arthur Grossman, bassoon, will perform works of Mozart, Francaix, Villa-Lobos and Reicha on Friday, Jan. 16 in Sunset Theater, Carmel. Chamber music society sponsors concert by noted quintet

While in Puerto Rico the quintet participated in the Casals Festivals, often toured in the United States and the Carribbean and began its recording career. In 1968 the ensemble was brought to the University of Washington.

After winning the silver medal in the 1972 Villa-Lobos Competition and Festival in Rio de Janeiro the quintet was sent by the U.S. Department of State on three tours of South and Central America, and later on a tour of 11 countries of Europe.

Highlights included concerts at the Gulbenkian Foundation in Lisbon, La Scala in Milan, Teatro la Fenice in Venice, and the first broadcast performance since 1940 by American musicians on Hungarian National Radio. Soni Ventorum has recorded on the Lyrichord, Crystal and Musical Heritage Society labels.

Felix Skowronek, flute, began his musical studies in Seattle and later attended the Curtis Institute of Music where he studied under William Kincaid. He has played principal flute in the Seattle and St. Louis symphonies and is a founding member of Soni Ventorum.

While on the faculty of the Conservatory of Music of Puerto Rico, Skowronek took part in the Casals Festivals. He is an active participant of the annual convention of the National Flute Association and an authority on the use of new domestic and foreign hardwoods in flute manufacture.

Laila Storch, oboe, graduated form the Curtis Institute of Music where she studied with Marcel Tabuteau. She was first oboist of the Houston Symphony and later of the Mozarteum Orchestra in Salzburg. Storch joined Soni Ventorum in 1965 and participated in the first Casals Festivals in Prades and Perpignan.

She has toured the Soviety Union, participated in the Marlboro Music Festivals and the Bach festivals of Carmel, Bethlehem and Barcelona. Storch has published many articles about oboe history and oboists.

William McColl, clarient, studied at the Oberlin Conservatory and the Academy of Music in Vienna. A founding member of Soni Ventorum, he was principal clarinet of the Philharmonia Hungarica and Puerto Rico Symphony Orchestras. McColl is interested in antique instruments and plays on an instrument especially constructed for him from boxwood. He has played in all of the 19 Soni Ventorum recordings now in print.

David Kappy, horn, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, served on the faculties of the Interlochen Arts Academy and the Universities of Montana and Nebraska. He has been solo horn with the Omaha Symphony, the Omaha Ballet and Opera, and frequently plays in the St. Louis and Seattle symphonies.

Kappy joined Soni Ventorum in 1979 and has particiated in the Grand Teton, Brattleboro and Claremont summer music festivals. His major interest is in the 18th century literature for wind octet and he has been active in furthering the performance of this repertoire at the Universities of Nebraska and Washington.

Arthur Grossman, bassoon, made his debut at the age of 13 with the Oklahoma City Symphony. He is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music where he studied with Sol Schoenbach. Grossman has played principal bassoon in the Indianapolis and Cincinnati symphonies and participated in the Marlboro and Aspen music festivals.

While professor of bassoon at the Puerto Rico Conservatory of Music he also played principal bassoon in the Puerto Rico Symphony and in the annual Casals Festivals. Since joining the faculty of the University of Washington, Grossman has performed widely with the quintet and as soloist in the United States and internationally as well as recording works for solo bassoon of all periods of the repertoire.

Single tickets are $10 at the door prior to the concert. For information call 625-2212.

Carl Jung's analytic psychology explored during Friday workshop

'THE BODY AS Crucible," a workshop which "pioneers new dimensions of Jung's Analytic Psychology," will be presented Friday, Jan. 16 at All Saints' Church, Dolores and Ninth, Carmel. The 7 p.m. program is sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung.

Saturday and Sunday sessions will follow, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Jan. 18 and 19.

The activity is designed to give both a conceptual framework of, and actual experience in, how the body may act as the crucible for what Jung called the individuation process. Many are familiar with how dream images offer clues to what the unconscious wants us to know. It also sends us signals through our bodies — via physical experiences, chronic symptoms, and major and minor illnesses.

The evening's program will tend to emphasize how the immediate, right-now-in-the-body signals can give greater awareness of psychic make-up.

Working with the "dreaming body" deepens and integrates other therapeutic approaches. But instead of applying a "program" to clients, each individual's uniquely-own processes are used, and help unveil the subtle messages of the psyche/body. Participants will explore in a personal way this approach to working with the body, dreams and relationship issues.

David Roomy, psychotherapist from Bellingham, Wash., will lead the workshop. He has had more than 20 years' experience in the Jungian field, and is being certified in the training program of the Research Society for Process-oriented Psychology.

Assisting will be Joseph Pagano of Monterey, who directs programs of the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung, which is a group of people who are finding mutual support while enlarging their knowledge of Jung's ideas.

Prior registration is requested. Details on fee contributions may be had by calling 649-8809.

Heroic pets nominated for SPCA recognition

The Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will recognize the outstanding contribution animals make in our lives by presenting The Heroic Animal Award at its annual meeting, slated noon Saturday, March 7, at Rancho Canada in Carmel Valley. Nominations for the award will be accepted now through Friday, Feb. 27.

The award will be presented to a heroic animal in Monterey County for outstanding service or a heroic deed which enhanced the quality of someone's life or somehow aided in preserving the property, health or life of an individual.

To nominate an animal for this award, simply state the facts about the service or deed in a letter and include your name, address and phone number, as well as any supporting photographs, newspaper articles or documentation available.

Entries should be mailed to: Heroic Animal, Monterey County SPCA, P.O. Box 3058, Monterey, CA 93924. All entries must be received by Friday, Feb. 27.

Free typing classes scheduled

Free typing classes are again offered by the Monterey Adult School this semester, which began Jan. 5.

Classes meet from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday in Room B-26 at Seaside High School. Students may attend as many evenings as they wish. However, beginners are urged to attend the Monday and Wednesday classes.

People who wish to brush up on their typing skills or prepare themselves for computer typing are welcome to attend, as well as those who have never touched a typewriter.

ON STAGE

Hold That Tiger

Monterey Peninsula novelist and Asian expert Wallace Thompson has written Hold That Tiger, a drama that focuses on a culture clash in rural Pakistan that develops into a life and death situation.

The original production, directed by Philip Clarkson, is staged by the Staff Players Repertory Company. Hold That Tiger opens Thursday, Jan. 15 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

The cast includes Norman Stottmeister as a Peace Corps volunteer in flight from his family; Tiffany Grant as his rejected wife, Londa, and Marley Avanti as a New York writer. Citizens of the Punjabi magistrate are portrayed by Tom Sanchez, Diane Rowe and Felix Sola. The production is recommended for mature audiences.

Hold That Tiger plays 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays. Tickets are $7 and $5 and reservations can be made by calling the theater, 624-1531, or Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

•

The Price

The Monterey Peninsula College Staff Players will present Arthur Miller's The Price starting Friday, Jan. 16.

Nick Zanides directs the modern drama to be staged at The York School Theatre at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday. The show runs through Jan. 31.

In The Price Miller introduces us to the Franz brothers, one aggressive and lucky, the other loyal and obscure; one more "realistic," the second somewhat foolish and perhaps defeated.

The almost 90-year-old Jewish furniture dealer, Solomon, injects something like wisdom, and a good deal of humor, while the brothers meet after a 16-year estrangement to sell the furniture from the attic of the family home. One brother is a policeman who gave up his education and potential future as a scientist to care for his invalid father. The other brother is an eminent surgeon, who walked out on the demands of family to pursue his personal success.

For reservations call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. Tickets are $6 and $4.

John Steinbeck — A Quest of Genius

James Nisbet Clark collected many of John Steinbeck's lesser-known writings and speeches for his one-man tribute to the Nobel Prize-winning author of The Grapes of Wrath, Of Mice and Men and East of Eden.

According to Clark, major themes throughout Steinbeck's writing underscore the cause of individual liberty, thus any profits derived from this production will benefit Amnesty International.

Final performances of John Steinbeck — A Quest of Genius will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Jan. 16-17, in Carpenter Hall of Sunset Center, Mission and Eighth, Carmel. Tickets are $10 and $7 at the door, or for reservations call 649-5561.

•

Strange Snow

The Central Coast premiere of Steve Metcalfe's critically acclaimed dramatic comedy, Strange Snow, will take place Thursday, Jan. 15 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

Fraternal fracas

VICTOR FRANZ (Henry Littlefield, right), berates his brother Walter (Jim Jensen), in the Arthur Miller play, The Price, which opens Friday, Jan. 16 at the York School Theater. The Monterey Peninsula College production, directed by Nick Zanides, plays weekends through January.

Sid Cato directs Strange Snow. The play follows a romance that develops between a Vietnam veteran, portrayed by John Rousseau, and the sister of his troubled army buddy. Nita Raichart portrays the sister who tries to convince her brother, played by Kemper York, to leave the war behind and get on with life.

Strange Snow plays Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8. Matinees have been scheduled at 2 p.m. Sundays, Feb. 8, 22 and March 8. Regular ticket prices are $9.50 general and $8 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are $1 less Thursdays and Sunday matinees.

For further information, reservations and group bookings, call 649-6852. Advance tickets are available from Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. The GroveMont Theater Arts Center is at 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey.

•

Olio Revue

The ensemble members of California's First Theatre will revive their collection of music, song and dance for the new year.

The annual Olio Revue plays Fridays and Saturdays through January.

The theater, which is the oldest in the state, is located on Pacific Street at Scott in Monterey. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $4 for seniors and teens and $3 for children 12 and younger. For information, call 375-4916 between 1 and 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and between 1 p.m. and showtime Fridays and Saturdays.

•

8 Novembers

Bill Keim's newest play, 8 Novembers, will be staged Friday through Sunday, Jan. 16-18, as part of the admission-free "Jan Fest" at The Western Stage.

The play will be brought to life by two staff members of the Western Stage, Mona Hyre and Joyce Lower. 8 Novembers will be staged at 8 nightly in the Studio Theater of the Performing Arts Center at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. No tickets or reservations are required.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joanne Tenenbaum

'John Steinbeck: A Quest of Genius'

IN SUNSET CENTER'S Carpenter Hall, a lecture room without stage lights or curtain, James Nisbet Clark has created a theatrical occasion.

"John Steinbeck, A Quest of Genius," is a one-man performance devised and performed by Clark, who has pulled together eight selections from Steinbeck's work, strung them together with songs and incidental music, and peppered them lightly with his own commentary. Describing himself variously as a fan and disciple of Steinbeck, Clark sets out to light a spark of interest in those not familiar with Steinbeck's work.

He leads off with an impassioned reading of Steinbeck's Nobel Prize acceptance speech, which identifies Steinbeck as a humanist in the classical sense, that is, one who believes in the perfectibility of human kind and who believes a work of art must in some way ennoble the human spirit.

Clark moves from this crowning moment in the novelist's career back to his youthful arrogance, reading a haughty letter Steinbeck wrote to the bride of a close friend, by whom he apparently felt the friendship threatened.

A father's sensitive reflections on his son's future is excerpted from Cup of Gold, Steinbeck's first novel, and includes Merlin's advice to the boy, given in a properly ancient, rustling voice.

Clark claims Steinbeck was a feminist, but you can't prove it by the selection that follows — the attempt by four legendary sorceresses to seduce the imprisoned Lancelot, each offering what she imagines to be his heart's desire. This selection, from Steinbeck's modern prose version of the Morte d'Arthur, is a high spot. Here, Clark's dramatic reading shifts into pure theater. His characterizations of the four sorceresses are curiously convincing, and the material is magical stuff.

Although Clark announces that he is not trying to impersonate Steinbeck, he sometimes seems to be doing so, most notably in sensitive readings of Steinbeck's letters, the first to Elaine Scott, not yet Steinbeck's second wife, in which the writer's gift for language reveals itself with poignance and immediacy.

Steinbeck faces up to his children's disappointment and confusion as his marriage crumbles — ("I'm not willing to lie to them and they're not old enough for the truth because it won't make any more sense to them than it does it me"). The letter chronicles Steinbeck's single-parent days but glides effortlessly into lyrical expression, with the author keeping a keen ear out for his own false notes ("the mind is a bad child").

Clark reads this letter, written in 1949, as though he had written it himself. A little later, he jumps 10 years and reads us another letter, this one to Elia Kazan. It is a very different sort of letter, a rhapsody on the depth and beauty of language from one creative artist to another, that reveals the author of The Grapes of Wrath as something of an elitist. But Steinbeck is alive to Clark, and his enthusiasm is infectious. Whether he means to portray Steinbeck or not, here he achieves it.

I am wary of discipleship myself and found Clark's myth-building a little out of place ("John Steinbeck came out of the West"), but Clark's fervor of the works of Steinbeck has yielded up a well-researched, entertaining evening that introduces the audience to the power of Steinbeck's voice and many of his moods and qualities.

HABIB THE Pakistani magistrate (Tom Sanchez) admonishes his friend Stuart (Norman Stottmeister) in Wallace Thompson's new drama, Hold That Tiger, opening Thursday at the Indoor Forest Theater.

JAN EMBREE (Marley Avanti) comforts photographer Londa Blackburn (Tiffany Grant) in a scene from Hold That Tiger. Philip Clarkson directs the premiere staging of the play for the Staff Players Repertory Company.

East/West culture clash portrayed in Staff Players' show

By ANNE PAPINEAU

THE FABLED KHYBER Pass, near-Eastern gateway used by such conquerors as Alexander the Great and Tamerlane, is also utilized by a local playwright as the setting for a play opening this week at Carmel's Indoor Forest Theater.

The intimate theater will be transformed into a Pakistani village by cast and crew of the Staff Players Repertory Company. Their roadmap is a never-before-produced script by Monterey Peninsula resident Wallace Thompson.

The essence of Thompson's story is conflict between cultures. His play, Hold That Tiger, juxtaposes Americans, local Pathans and the Punjabi magistrate. Further conflict is orchestrated among the three American characters: a Peace Corps volunteer, played by Norman Stottmeister; his wife, Londa (Tiffany Grant), and a New York writer and photographer, (Marley Avanti), with whom Londa is travelling.

Playwright Wallace Thompson resides on Jacks Peak where his home bespeaks a lifetime spent working and travelling among many cultures.

"I'm retired, but you'd never guess it," he quipped, referring to a busy writing schedule now combined with looking in on play rehearsals.

Artifacts from India, Pakistan, Indonesia and other countries surround the author of Hold That Tiger. This, his second play, reflects his insights into Pakistani culture, insights he gained while serving as the representative of the Asia Foundation, a private foundation that bequeathed gifts to universities in that part of the world.

"I was there from 1961 to 1964," Thompson noted. He described life in Pakistan as essentially carefree for an American in his position, "But I found it difficult in that everything we did had to be cleared with the Pakistani government," he added.

Playwrighting is a comparatively new career for Thompson, who has already published three novels.

"I studied international relations at Stanford as well as creative writing. This play takes from both backgrounds."

Thompson's first play, The Brain-Fever Bird, was given a staged reading by the Actors' Alley Repertory Theater in Los Angeles last fall. Despite official retirement, he is carving yet another career, one that can draw from the many other roles he has pursued earlier.

Fluent in six languages and "able to speak three others with varying degrees of fluency," Thompson has pursued several other careers, including the presidency of a publishing house in Menlo Park, executive director of another San Francisco-based foundation, and two years' service with the U.S. State Department in Libya.

"That was my introduction to the Muslim world," he recalled.

"One of the things I've emphasized in this play is how a modern American woman is suddenly faced with life in another culture where the position of women is very different," he noted. "I'm a reporter really, and not taking an advocacy position for one side or another in the play. But in the second act there's a dialogue between an American and Pakistani woman that reflects their complete misunderstanding of each other's role."

To further steep his play in authenticity, Thompson turned to Carmel resident Abida Khanum — a woman he met in Pakistan two decades ago — to help design the costumes.

He described the plot of Hold That Tiger as "not autobiographical, but the basic premise is based on an actual incident."

The first staging of Hold That Tiger is directed by Philip Clarkson, who was recently seen as the Rev. Morrell in the Staff Players' staging of Shaw's Candida.

Writing Hold That Tiger was a two-year effort for Thompson, and he expressed "excitement" at seeing his script brought to life by the Staff Players.

"It's also a learning process," he confirmed. "You learn how important it is not to have any extraneous dialogue. It has to flow. You have to learn to cut — to be merciless, because the movement of the play comes first."

The Staff Players traditionally focus on staging the classics, so it is also a learning experience for cast and crew to be able to rehearse with the author at their side.

"We're working together as a team, but the director has the final say. I sometimes make suggestions, but the changes have been minor," Thompson said.

The playwright seems enamored of his new-won craft, and is at work on a three-act comedy set in Bengazi, Libya, as well as a one-act play.

"I would never go back to writing novels again," he asserted. "I enjoy the discipline of playwrighting. It's a limited time frame you must work in. Not only are you limited in time but also to keep to the one-set rule to keep down production costs.

"Also by the need to get across what you're trying to say without description and through dialogue, in a play you must get across a character mostly through what actors say. I find that fascinating."

Hold That Tiger will premiere at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 15 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

MUSIC CORNER

By Jo Ann La Torra

County Symphony exhibits trouble spots, strengths

MIRIAM FRIED and the Sibelius Violin Concerto certainly dominated the Sunday concert of the Monterey County Symphony conducted by Clark Suttle at Monterey's King Hall. The melodic and colorful Sibelius concerto is not played frequently, so it was a pleasure to hear it, partly as a break from the more popular ones, mostly because it is a good piece.

The balance between solo instrument and orchestra reflects some changes in musical thinking happening around the turn of the century. Many earlier concertos tended to be virtuoso solos with orchestral accompaniment; Brahms' concertos are more symphonic, with one instrument highlighted. This one has a bit of each approach, but it is often two compatible constituents travelling together, sometimes conversing, sometimes thinking their own thoughts. The unusual first movement has many cadenza passages, where the soloist just leaves the orchestra, but Sibelius abandons this kind of fantasy in the other movement.

Suttle did an excellent job of managing all this diversity.

Fried is a formidable artist, in whom brilliant technique and intelligent musicianship merge. We too often appluad technique for its own sake, forgeting that hundreds, probably thousands, of violinists (or pianists, or flutists) have it, and that it is a beginning, not an end. It must serve the artist, not the other way around.

Richard Strauss' tone poem, Don Juan, Op. 20, closed the program with color and flair. There was occasional raggedness in the orchestra, and occasional imprecision, but it was generally an exciting reading. The passages for brass choir are so wonderful that one puts up with a lot just to get to those.

•

THE REST of the program was not so satisfying. Mozart's 36th symphony ("Linz") opened the evening, but it was heavy Mozart. A tighter sound and crisper phrasing would have been welcome. The second movement got very ponderous. The slow movements in 6/8 time of this period are something of a problem — the perfect tempo is hard to find. This one was slow; the piece got "notey" and long. The Menuetto was also slow, becoming an earthier dance. The final Presto, while fast, also lacked the requisite lightness. However, there was some classy playing from the cellos and basses that helped the first movement a lot.

Ravel's Le Tombeau de Couperin rounded out the very long program. This suite of 17th century dances, Ravel's tribute to the French Baroque, was buried in this program. The orchestral sound was the same as for the other music, and it was too much for the piece.

Personally, I prefer this piece in its original version, for piano. The orchestral suite sounds to me like an exercise in orchestration; even though Ravel did it himself, the result is to call attention to the tone colors rather than melodies, harmonies and rhythms. In the end, it got boring.

The overall impression of the orchestra, however, remains good. There was some excellent solo playing, as well as sectional work.

Vandevere to speak at Native Plant potluck

Noted naturalist and long-time chapter member Jud Vandevere will present a slide program on early botanical exploration in the Monterey area during the annual pot-luck dinner presented by the Monterey Bay Chapter of the California Native Plant Society.

The Tuesday, Jan. 20 gathering will begin with a social half-hour at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 6:30 at the First Presbyterian Church, 501 El Dorado in Monterey.

Vandevere's program has been distilled from courses he taught at UC Santa Cruz and Monterey Peninsula College as well as slide shows given over the years with the late Bee Howitt.

Starting with the ill-fated La Perouse expedition in 1786, plant explorers have been enthralled with the flora of this area, and as a result European gardens of the early 19th century burgeoned with such local natives as sand verbena, mahonia, toyon, Zauschneria, madrone and fuchsia-flowered gooseberry.

The program will concentrate on explorers who visited the area up to about the 1850s and the plants they discovered and collected.

Visitors are requested to bring a hot dish, salad or dessert, enough to serve eight. Bring own plates and silverware. Bread and beverages will be provided.

A $1 per person donation is requested to help pay for the use of the hall. For details, call 659-0678.

ORD WAS CAVALRY BASE

Fort Ord got its beginnings when the Army bought 16,000 acres of sand dunes and scrub oaks to train new cavalrymen. The training area was called Gigling Reservation.

Polly Kenaston paintings shown

Carmel resident Polly Kenaston will be the featured artist throughout January in the gallery of the Carmel Foundation.

Kenaston said she has always liked to paint, but her career as an interior designer left her no time.

"I have designed everything from condos to railroad cars. My painting was on Sundays and holidays — whenever I wasn't working seven days a week — a Sunday painter. Now I am delighted to be a Monday painter."

She has lived in southern California, and her media are oil and watercolor. She has painted with Clarence Bates and is now working with Elizabeth Palmer at the foundation.

The Carmel Foundation is on Lincoln and Eighth. Viewing hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 1 to 5 p.m. weekends.

Smokers' challenge offers incentives to quit

If you smoke cigarettes, would the prospect of winning a free one-week vacation in Hawaii for two people induce you to quit?

Once again the challenge is on to get smokers to quiet.

Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital, in conjunction with KSBW-TV 8 and KTOM radio, is sponsoring Smokers' Challenge '87 — a quit smoking contest.

Grand prize is a trip to Hawaii donated by Town and Country Cadillac, Oldsmobile and Honda of Salinas. Other prizes include two nights at Carmel's Highlands Inn and an evening in San Francisco at the White Swan Inn.

Entry forms can be picked up at all the local libraries and participating sponsors. Contest entry deadline is Feb. 15.

Contemporary Russian film screened

IRINA KUPCHENKO stars in Without Witness, a 1985 Russian film directed by Nikita Mikhalkov (Slave of Love, Oblomov). The film will be screened in Russian with English subtitles by the Monterey Institute International Film Series. Without Witness focuses on the unsettling encounter between a man and his ex-wife in their small apartment. Through their conversations and soliloquies, the reasons for their separation are revealed. The movie will be shown at 8:15 p.m. Friday through Sunday, Jan. 16-18, at Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

MICHAEL PURCELL will teach a six-week class in the Feldenkrais Method of motion therapy at the Cherry Foundation in Carmel. A free introductory class will be offered to new students who call 646-1366.

Feldenkrais program offered at Cherry

CLASSES IN the Feldenkrais method of motion therapy will be offered at the Cherry Foundation, beginning at 2 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 20.

Michael Purcell, who will teach the six-week class, says the Feldenkrais technique is based on the idea that individuals can improve their ability and fitness through learning — or re-learning — proper movement and coordination.

"The secret of becoming very fit is in the discovery that the mind is more powerful than the body," says Purcell.

Purcell cites what he calls a "typical" case of a 35-year-old man who was injured in an accident and had constant back pain as well as insomnia. After six sessions, he says the man's pain was gone and he walked comfortably and slept normally.

Purcell also says the technique, which was developed by Israeli physicist and engineer Moshe Feldenkrais, has effectively helped the handicapped to learn movement more easily and is used by artists and athletes to sharpen their performance skills.

Yet practitioners emphasize that they do not practice medicine. Purcell says the Feldenkrais method "is not a form of treatment, and should not be used as a substitute when medical treatment is needed."

A Russian-born Jew with a doctorate in physics, Feldenkrais developed his theory rather than undergoing surgery for a knee injury. Using his knowledge of body mechanics, anatomy, physiology and psychology, Feldenkrais' self-rehabilitiation became the initial step in the development of his method of movement education.

The classes, which cost $35 for six weeks, will meet from 2 to 3 p.m. at the Cherry Foundation, Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel. New students can receive a free introductory class or a $5 discount for six weeks.

For information and registration, call 646-1366.

Registration to begin for Monterey recreational programs

An array of recreational activities of interest to the entire family has been organized by the City of Monterey Parks and Recreation Department.

There are more than 100 selections to choose from and many are scheduled to begin during the week of Feb. 2 through 7. Monterey City residents have first priority to register for the activities and may do so from Jan. 20 through 25. Non-Monterey residents may sign up beginning Jan. 26.

Program offerings have been designed for both youth and adults. There are also a number of programs of special interest to senior citizens.

Activity categories include arts and crafts; dance; exercise; general interests (i.e. gardening, dog training, etc.); music and drama; travel; special events and sports.

Activities vary in content, meeting day/time, locations, length of session, age and in fees.

Information is summarized in the Spring Activities Guide which is a 48-page booklet.

Free copies can be picked up at the department's adminstrative office, 546 Dutra St., Monterey, and at other city park and recreation facilities.

For more information, call 646-3866.

New lung treatments outlined

A panel of four experts will discuss new therapies for lung disease at a community health forum from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Jan. 17 in the Main Conference Room at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Each of the panelists will make a presentation and there will be a period for questions and answers. There is no charge for attendance, but seating is limited so early arrival is recommended. For more information, call 625-4505.

Photo workshop will feature tours, lectures

Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops opens its fourth season with a week-long Easter workshop, to take place April 11-17.

This one is for intermediate to advanced students who wish to learn firsthand what photographers are doing on the Monterey Peninsula.

The focus is on total photographic immersion with people of like interests. There will be demonstrations, two field trips, portfolio reviews and critiques, a visit to Cole Weston's Garrapata studio, nightly activities, sharing of ideas and lots more to inspire each participant.

Demonstrators include Don Stang, Kodak professional photography specialist, who will present the latest Kodak products, one of which is the new T-Max film.

The Monterey Peninsula College lab will be available to participants who wish to develop their film or to make prints from the field trips. Brad Cole will be on hand to assist in the lab.

The following are among those who are either instructors or who will put in a guest appearance: Richard Garrod, Henry Gilpin, Rod Dresser, Robert Byers, Roger Fremier, Cole Weston, Don Stang and Bob Burns.

The fee is $195 for this week-long workshop. For further information contact Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops, 980 Fremont St., Monterey, 93940, or call 624-6870.

A TOUR of Cole Weston's darkroom and studio in Garrapata Canyon will be one of the highlights of the Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops in April.

Ultra Lift

What is it?
A non surgical face lift

What Can It Do?
• Uplift jawline • Lift drooping eyes and corner of lips Diminish wrinkles • Eradicates fine lines • Draws out excess water and oil • Close large pores and smooth skin

How Long does it take before results?
Results are immediate— within 12 to 15 mins.

How does it differ from other lifts?
99% of all other lifts tell you not to use close to eyes. Crows feet and eye wrinkles are the first signs of "mature" lines. Ultra Lift can be used safely around the eye area.

Ultra Lift is designed for all skin types.

Career Bridge aids job seekers

The "Career Bridge" program of the YWCA is seeking unemployed single parents, homemakers in transition and AFDC recipients to participate in a no-cost, needs assessment survey to help increase employability.

The YWCA, in cooperation with the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District Vocational Education Department, offers Career Bridge beginning this month. It is an employment counseling and career opportunity program that includes workshops dealing with self-esteem, career and life planning, and resume writing. It will lead to vocational training and entry into the MPUSD regional occupation program.

Career Bridge is a public service project of the YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula and is funded in part by the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Division of the California State Department of Education through the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District.

WALK TO BEACH! Conveniently located within walking distance to the beach & Carmel Point, a charming 2 bedroom, 2 bath Country English home with sunny, adobe patio garden entrance. Of approximately 1300 sq. ft., there are hardwood floors & plaster walls throughout, a library alcove off the living room, dining area, and comfortable kitchen. Private deck and lovely garden in the rear. Storage areas. Now $269,000. 625-4111.

PANORAMIC SEA & POINT LOBOS VIEWS! Plus scenes of Carmel Valley rolling hills, a spacious High Meadows 4 bedroom, 2½ bath contemporary. Light & airy, in excellent condition, with an open floor plan ideal for entertaining, there are open-beam ceilings, a fireplace in the living room opening to view deck, formal dining, separate family room, and private, sunny-view deck off the master suite. Easy-care grassy yard in rear. $345,000. 625-0300.

NEAR OCEAN ON OVERSIZED LOT! Beautifully located on an oversized Carmel Point lot just one-half block from the sea, a charming one-level light & sunny 3 bedroom, 2 bath home with nice-sized rooms and offering a peek of Carmel beach and the ocean. A brick fireplace warms the living room, and there is a formal dining room, large laundry room off kitchen, and newly painted plaster walls plus private rear yard, patio & double garage. Very well maintained! Excellent buy at $399,000. 625-4111.

HATTON FIELDS HOME! Privately set at the end of a cul-de-sac in the best area of Hatton Fields, an attractive 4 bedroom, 2½ bath, two-story contemporary. Gracious living room with two-story ceiling & marble fireplace, formal dining and spacious kitchen make up the downstairs area. The four bedrooms, 2 baths, and open sitting area are upstairs plus bonus office off the master suite. $399,000. 625-0300.

NEW ON THE MARKET! Capturing beautiful ocean & Bay views from the spacious solarium sunroom (where you'll want to spend all your time), and master bedroom, an absolutely charming English Tudor home of approximately 2200 sq. ft. in a great "south of Ocean, walk to town and beach" location! Fireplaces warm the high beam ceiling living room and the family room, 4 bedrooms & 2 bath. Small upstairs deck, and large deck in fenced rear yard. $420,000. 625-0300.

NEW ON THE MARKET! In desirable Rancho Rio Vista area, a 3 bedroom, 3½ bath contemporary capturing Point Lobos views on a private 1.4 partially fenced acre. Marvelous for entertaining, with a lovely courtyard entrance, there is a "great room" living dining area with brick fireplace, and comfortable kitchen, plus private den. Outside plan to "hot tub" and shower under the stars. Enjoy the protected eagles-nest sun-deck above the master bedroom with it's picture window framing lovely Carmel Bay views. Room for pool & additional gardens. $439,000. 625-0300.

CARMEL HIGHLANDS

NEW ON THE MARKET! Capturing stunning sea & forest views, a marvelous, light & airy contemporary home — built less than a year ago — located in a serene private setting. There is quality construction & finishing throughout, with extensive use of rich cedar panelling plus glass, with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, 2 fireplaces — one in the spacious living room, another in the family room, and a cheery large kitchen. Two of the bedrooms are downstairs with an outside entry plus a den. Natural landscaping. $439,000. 625-0300.

CRASHING SURF VIEWS! Fabulous views of the ocean & forest are seen from this three-level European contemporary beautifully created of redwood, stucco & stone. Hand-tiled two-story entry, living room with framed sea views plus wet bar. Delightful cabinetry kitchen with breakfast area, glass hallway opening to large family room. Entire upper-level master suite with soaring beamed ceilings. Lower-level family area with sitting room, 2 bedrooms & adjoining deck. Three fireplaces & skylights. $975,000. 625-0300.

OCEANSIDE AT WILDCAT COVE! A very private custom-built home designed to capture spectacular views of Wildcat Cove, rocks, surf & the open sea! A one-owner, quality home accented with a variety of woods, with spacious view living room with fireplace, formal dining, convenient kitchen with pass thru, lovely sea-views form the master bedroom plus one of 2 other bedrooms & 3 baths. Patio and natural, low maintenance grounds. $995,000. 625-0300.

CARMEL VALLEY

OVERLOOKING CVG&CC FAIRWAY! A creatively designed cedar & glass 3700 sq. ft. home offering dramatic beauty, complete privacy plus an open atmosphere.
